Chandrayaan 3 begins its lunar voyage

BALA CHAUHAN @ Sriharikota

ISRO launched India's third unmanned mission to the moon, Chandrayaan 3, on board 43.5-metre-tall Launch Vehicle Mark-III-M4 (LVM3-M4) rocket from Satish Dhawan Space Centre (SDSC) at 2.35 pm on Friday. The mission aims to soft-land near the lunar south pole on August 23 or 24.

The launch and its three-stage separations, which went off in copybook precision, were received with much cheer and applause from thousands of spectators gathered at Sriharikota as well as scientists at the Mission Control Centre of SDSC.

The biggest cheer came precisely 16 minutes after the launch when the propulsion module carrying the lander and the rover separated from the third cryogenic stage of LVM3-M4 and was put in the intended orbit around the earth.

"Congratulations, India," ISRO chairman Sreedhara Panicker Somanath said after the successful launch and earth-orbit insertion of the propulsion module. "Chandrayaan 3 has started its journey towards the moon. Our dear LVM 3 has already put Chandrayaan 3 craft (the propulsion module) into a precise orbit around earth... and let us wish all the best for Chandrayaan 3 craft for its further orbit-raising maneuvers and travel towards the moon in the coming days," he said.

Over the next few days, the propulsion module will make five increasingly larger elliptical orbits around the earth, with the final orbit's farthest point being 36,500km and closest point to earth being 170km. The idea is to use the earth's gravity like a sling swung multiple times to gain momentum for its 3,84,400 km journey to the moon and get captured by the lunar gravity. P5

The 'Fat Boy' has done its job. We are in the process of increasing the launch frequency of this vehicle considering the national requirements as well as satellite demands. Today's mission was a 'penance' of many in ISRO — S Mohana Kumar, Mission director

India-France roadmap for next 25 yrs

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

UNDERLINING that defence cooperation the pillar remains of Indo-French ties, India and France on Friday announced the joint development of jet and helicopter engines and the construction of three Scorpene submarines for the Indian Navy. The announcements were made after extensive talks between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and French President Emmanuel Macron.

However, there was no word on the procurement of 26 naval variants of Rafale fighter jets.

The two countries have set 'bold and ambitious' goals to strengthen the strategic cooperation over the next 25 years, PM Modi said as he concluded his two-day visit to France.

"We are celebrating the 25th anniversary of our Strategic Partnership. On the strong foundation of the last 25 years, we are preparing a roadmap for the coming 25 years. We are setting bold and ambitious goals for this," Modi said at a joint press statement with French President Emmanuel Macron.

Modi also announced that a new Indian consulate will be opened in Marsailles.

In a joint statement, Marcon highlighted the defence ties between India and France and how Indian soldiers fought for the French. He said 30,000 French students will study in India by 2030, adding that the visa process will be simplified to allow Indian students to come and study in France.

Earlier in the day, Modi was conferred with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, France's highest civilian and military honour, becoming the first Indian PM to receive the coveted honour. The other dignitaries who received the honour include Nelson Mandela, King Charles and Angela Merkel.

Patil: Will take steps to plug GST leakage

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

MINISTER for Law, Parliamentary Affairs, Legislation, and Tourism HK Patil said on Friday that the state government will take steps to plug leakage in GST collection. He was replying to queries related to GST collection in the Assembly.

Cutting across party lines, members gave suggestions to the government on ensuring better tax collection as well as plugging leakage in the system. The Assembly on Friday passed Karnataka Goods and Services Tax (Amendment) Bill. The minister said that the government is planning to oversee audits and keep a strict vigil on e-commerce operators to improve GST collection.

The Bill provides for penal provisions applicable to e-commerce operators relating to supply of goods through them by unregistered persons or composition taxpayers.

Patil said the provisions in the Bill will help overcome challenges in GST collection, especially on intra-state supply of goods. The Bill has 22 amendments -- 16 for tax compliance and six for dealer-friendly initiatives.

Some senior leaders, including former CM Basavaraj Bommai (BJP), HD Revanna (JDS), Shivalinge Gowda (Congress) and former home minister Araga Jnanendra (BJP) suggested several measures to increase GST collection. They pointed out that many items are not under GST purview. All those items should be brought under the GST net.

Patil said in the last financial year, over 11,700 cases were inspected, where GST officials collected Rs 1,320 crore as penalty. They had launched a drive against bogus dealers and identified 1600 violations and nearly Rs 100 crore input tax credit was blocked.

Patil explained how tax collection increased after GST came into force. "In 2017-18, Rs 44,816 crore was collected and in 2022-23, it increased to Rs 81,848 crore. Karnataka recorded the highest GST collection in the first quarter of this year," he said.

Sons' petition against order for more allowance to mom junked

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE number of youngsters who have failed to look after their aged and ailing parents is increasing and it is not a happy development, Karnataka High Court has said.

Justice Krishna S Dixit made this observation while rejecting a petition filed by Gopal and his brother Mahesh, residents of NR Mohalla in Mysuru, questioning the order passed by the deputy commissioner in May 2022 enhancing their mother's monthly maintenance allowance to Rs 10,000 from Rs 5,000.

The assistant commissioner awarded Rs 5,000 as monthly maintenance allowance in May 2019 for the duo's abandoned 84-year-old ailing mother Venkatamma under the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act. The court also imposed Rs 5,000 as cost to be paid to Venkatamma within 30 days, failing which the brothers have to pay Rs 100 per day after 30 days.

Gopal and Mahesh contended that they do not have sufficient means to pay Rs 10,000 and they are willing to look after their mother.

Army steps in to tackle fresh floods

ANUP VERMA & AMIT PANDEY @ New Delhi

THE flood situation in Delhi continued to remain grim on Friday with several areas of the city remaining submerged, even as the water level in swollen Yamuna started to ebb. Early in the day, a fresh crisis emerged as a water regulator operated by the Delhi Jal Board near the World Health Organization office in central Delhi was breached, triggering floods in several parts of ITO and the Rajghat.

The floodwaters also reached the doorstep of the Supreme Court, following which Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal and Lieutenant Governor V K Saxena visited the affected site to monitor the situation. To combat the backflow of water from the regulator, Army personnel and the National Disaster Relief Force were deployed.

As of Friday 7 pm, the water level in the Yamuna was at 208.17 metres – slightly down from 208.66 metres on Thursday evening. The Central Water Commission expects the water level to recede further to 208.05 metres or below overnight. Meanwhile, work is on to open five blocked gates at the ITO barrage, which are disrupting the flow of Yamuna water.

On a positive note, Kejriwal said the Okhla Water Treatment Plant, which was shut after flood waters inundated the plant, is functional again.

Can't control illegal sand mining: Min

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

REVENUE Minister Krishna Byregowda on Friday expressed the government's helplessness in controlling illegal sand mining and regulating its supply in the state.

Participating in a discussion on the issue in the Assembly, he urged the members to give suggestions to curb illegal sand mining and regulate its trade.

The minister said the issue could not be resolved by successive governments.

"If we stop illegal sand mining, the price of sand will increase. If it is legalised by the government, more sand mining will take place. I have seen five governments that were unable to resolve this issue," he added.

MLAs Allama Prabhu Patil from Gulbarga South and MY Patil from Afzalpur constituencies raised the issue of illegal sand mining. Allama Prabhu made a strong plea to stop illegal sand mining. Because of the increasing cost of sand, people are finding it difficult to construct houses, he said. He even referred to the murder of an official by the sand mafia.

Former minister and Yeshwanthpur MLA ST Somashekar, who raised the issue of illegal stone quarrying near Bengaluru, said that in one case, license has been given for quarrying in 46 acres of land. But quarrying is being done in more than 100 acres of land.

He said blasting at quarries even at midnight was causing inconvenience to the people. Walls of many houses in the vicinity have developed cracks.

Congress MLA N Srinivas from Nelamangala constituency said, "When I raised the issue, they threatened me."

Responding to them, Byregowda said that this is happening across the state. "When we were in Opposition, I had suggested to the BJP government to levy a one-time penalty on illegal mining. Drones could be used to survey the illegal quarrying and sand mining areas," he added.

He said that he will ask the minister concerned to send officials to such illegal mining areas.

Foodgrains rushed to villages in MM Hills

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

OFFICIALS of the Department of Food and Civil Supplies on Friday rushed foodgrains and other essential commodities to tribal families living at Nagamale and nearby villages in MM Hills in Chamarajanagar district.

TNIE IMPACT

The officials swung into action a day after The New Indian Express published a report about benefits of Anna Bhagya scheme not reaching the tribal families because of poor road connectivity.

They hired a goods vehicle and sent foodgrains and other items to the remote villages. They distributed foodgrains to over 40 tribal families.

The report, 'No Road, no Anna Bhagya for tribals of MM Hills', published on Thursday highlighted the plight of the tribals living in villages atop MM Hills. The only road from Pudur to Nagamale is in a pathetic condition as the Forest Department is not allowing authorities to asphalt it as the area falls under MM Hills Wildlife Sanctuary.

ARE those from upper middle-class families keen on cosmetic surgeries? Yes, according to doctors. Many are now opting for different cosmetic procedures to look good and feel young. Interestingly, there has been a spike in consultations by both men and women in the age group of 18-50.

According to doctors in Bengaluru, there has been a 30% increase in cosmetic surgeries mainly due to greater awareness, affordable costs and accessibility.

Dr Suhas S, consultant plastic, cosmetic and reconstructive surgeon, Fortis Hospital, said, "Getting plastic surgery done can be very gratifying and life-changing for patients in terms of improving their quality of life, self-image and their ability to be the best version of themselves."

He performs 10-15 non-surgical procedures a week.

Surgeons said the most common among cosmetic surgeries performed in the country are liposuction to reduce fat in one's body; tummy tuck, a post-pregnancy abdomen tightening surgery; rhinoplasty, nose correction; hair transplantation; breast augmentation; gynecomastia, male breast reduction; blepharoplasty, eye bag correction; arm and thigh lift; and genital-correction procedures.

Doctors in the city vouch for these procedures and said that they are performed in centres with good facilities and under expert supervision. "Most of them use world-class medical technologies that are safe and effective while maintaining utmost privacy and comfort," Dr Suhas said.

Another prominent surgery is "mommy makeover" where procedures are performed at one go for breast lift, tummy tuck, and liposuction of the stomach and lower body. P5

'Train frontline workers to become citizen-centric'

NAMRATA SINDWANI @Bengaluru

THE Union government must introduce a centrally-sponsored scheme for 'capacity building', as each state might not have the bandwidth to improve the quality of employees, Karnataka Administrative Reforms Commission-2 Chairman TM Vijay Bhaskar suggested here on Friday.

Other than the best quality training programmes reserved for the country and state-level civil service officers, Bhaskar said there is a need to train frontline workers like ward officers, police constables or gram panchayat members for using software like Microsoft Office and basic technology tools. Currently, state officers fall behind in those aspects and training them will improve the quality of work, with support from the government. Especially in areas of direct public interest, like urban development, food and civil supplies and revenue departments. Not all states are able to set aside funds for capacity building due to multiple socio-economic factors, hence dedicated support from the Centre will help them lay the foundation and focus on creating citizen-centric employees, Bhaskar explained.

He was speaking at the 'Building State Capacity' lecture organised by the Indian Institute of Public Administration, Bengaluru, discussing measures being taken to bridge the gap between civil servants and citizens through training/upskilling.

Explaining the Karmayogi Bharat initiative, Dr R Balasubramaniam, member - human resources, Capacity Building Commission, in his lecture on capacity building, said the government is taking efforts to shift from the karmachari to karmayogi mindset, and rule-based to role-based approach during the process of capacity building.

They are mapping out ministries and identifying the role of each employee to study their functional activities and motivation to perform them. The commission has also signed multiple MoUs with different states to work cohesively towards it. Over time, the government might also plan to introduce a domain course which is mandatory for officers before shifting to other profiles. They will even study trajectories of people to understand what role they will be suited for in the next five years.

RWH in only 1.9L buildings in Bengaluru

High installation cost, no govt subsidy makes it unappealing for residents

PURAN CHOUDHARY @Bengaluru

IN 2021, the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board (BWSSB) passed an Amendment Bill, making it mandatory for buildings built on sites measuring 60×40 feet and more to harvest and utilise rainwater for internal purposes. However, to date, only 1,93,186 residential and commercial buildings have installed rainwater harvesting (RWH) systems in Bengaluru. Citizens thinking of it as an additional cost and unavailability of government subsidy have made RWH installation unappealing.

BWSSB officials said that as many as 39,146 entities have not installed RWH systems as per law and the owners have been penalised. Also, some owners and housing societies have installed only the basic, unscientific systems to avoid hefty fines, say those involved in installing RWH systems.

Anoop Vayath, proprietor, TerraGreen, told TNIE, "The conversion rate of inquiries is very low. Only when it comes to the extreme do we see people investing in RWH. One of the major reasons is that housing societies don't want to shell out Rs 5-10 lakh or small house owners Rs 30,000 for such systems, as they don't see it as a long-term investment, but only as a huge expense."

Since the Act came into existence, a total fine of Rs 1,95,31,000 has been collected in the city. The department said that the focus was more on older buildings as the newer ones had to implement it. BWSSB Chief Engineer Suresh said, "We have formed different teams to go around areas and check whether individual residences have RWH."

Experts accused BWSSB of only fining single house owners and not housing societies. "Many have installed hoax RHW systems where the pipe from the terrace is placed in the ground but the wells are not getting recharged, different layers of soil are not put in the underground pit so the effort is unfruitful and unscientific," said Srinivas Ravidran of the Centre for Sustainable Development.

Chitravina N Ravikiran, CEO, Planet Symphony -- an environment advocacy group, said, "Citizens can be given tax exemption or tax deduction calling it environment incentives and encouraging the public to invest in RWH systems. We need more awareness on the long-term impact of RWH. "

BWSSB had constructed Sir M Visvesvaraya Rain Water Harvesting Theme Park at Jayanagar 5th Block in 2011. Officials said school and college students visit regularly and they are given demos as to how RWHs function and their advantages. Civil societies are also invited to install RWH units in their residential areas. The theme park so far has organised 88 sessions. "We need more awareness programmes. Not many are aware despite the fines." an official said.

Cop escapes as tree branch falls at busy jn

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru:

A POLICE constable on duty at Cunningham Road Junction got lucky, escaping a crashing tree branch by a whisker. The huge peepal branch brought traffic to a halt, and damaged four cars and a couple of two-wheelers on Friday evening.

Srimanth Bandiwadder, the constable attached to High Grounds traffic police station, said he heard the crack of a branch, and sheer instinct made him move to the side, which alerted others to follow suit. Within seconds, the branch came crashing down. "It seemed like half the tree fell. I immediately checked on the others around me, and alerted the control room. Traffic came to a halt and had to be diverted," he said.

Traffic police and BBMP workers cleared the tree branch and checked the damaged vehicles. Interestingly, BBMP officials admitted they were uncertain why the peepal branch fell, when there was no heavy downpour or strong wind. BBMP Deputy Conservator of Forests Sareena Sikkaligar said the weather or improper digging of the area may have damaged the roots and branches of the tree, which was also old and weak. The exact cause needs to be ascertained, to decide the next course of action.

A BBMP official who did not want to be named, said, "It is not uncommon for trees to fall and damage vehicles. So there is no need to worry or report the issue."

Experts said BBMP officials need to count and assess every tree in the city. There is still no account of the status of trees, nor is there coordination among BBMP wings, the engineering and road works departments or the forest cell, to maintain roots and branches while taking up civil works.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

15th July: Time is passing, the planets are moving through the sky, and it's an 'Airy' day today. 'So what does that mean?' you ask. Well, it's a perfect moment for sharing ideas - especially ones which are extravagant, weird and wonderful. Whether such thoughts have any practical application is another matter - and can be safely left until next week!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
The most significant planetary movements of the past few weeks have raised intense financial dreams. It's not always been easy but, for many of you, pleasant, romantic encounters have provided a welcome break from life's relentless routine. Whatever has happened, you must now subject your domestic plans to a thorough scrutiny.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Your solar chart's best feature is that it allows you the freedom to withdraw from stressful and angst-ridden emotional confrontations and enjoy pleasurable and passionate encounters. Much depends on your willingness to alter your perspective. Pay a little extra care to finances lest you throw good money after bad.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Although there will still be times during the weeks ahead when you feel inspired, you must take note of planetary movements that are now advising you to be a little more down-to-earth and business-like. You'll soon be changing your mind, shuffling your long-range plans, so don't allow partners to pin you into a corner.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Many of the emotional and psychological undercurrents revealed in your current planets are very subtle and therefore tend to be overwhelmed by daily cares and concerns. However, I suspect that you are now aware that you have commenced, or are about to commence, a major new partnership cycle.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Although your energy is at a peak right now, you must not imagine that this situation will continue for ever. You must therefore use the current surge of emotional power to reform and revitalise your relationships in a spirit of compromise, not confrontation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You are famous for the ruthlessness of your logical brain, yet at times like these, you must temper the cutting edge of your ideas with an understanding of the frailty of the human condition. In other words, don't expect people to deliver what is beyond their capacity or ability.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You must now move without delay to patch up the financial situation, especially to compensate for any bitterness or hurt which has resulted from recent conflicts or differences of opinion. You're already feeling more buoyant emotionally. Next week will justify your optimism in a number of pleasant ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Today's watery mood gives you all the emotional support you need. Leisure and travel stars are now both beneficial and highly stimulating, although many of you may have to adapt your plans at the last minute, in order to cope with changing circumstances. Can you make some spare time? Please try!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
It's time to catch up with yourself. Areas of your life which deserve extra attention include higher education and legal questions, both of which may implicate relatives or partners. Any crisis in holiday or travel plans should now be resolved, while relations with children should be made your top priority.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
When the phrase 'lateral thinking' was coined, it was exactly for the type of conditions that you meet today. Break out of old problems with radical, innovatory and revolutionary insights. And don't be afraid to look back to the past. It may be that the old ways were the best ways - and it takes a Capricorn to acknowledge that one simple truth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
The chances are that you will now have to lay down the law and let loved ones, partners and colleagues understand that they have definitely overstepped the mark. Yet you in your turn may bite off more than you can chew. One word of advice: don't neglect your health. There is no time like the present for getting - and keeping - fit.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
There are bound to be times over the coming days when your imagination takes off. But, then, it doesn't require much to arouse your visionary ideals, does it? Your challenge now is to put your dreams into action, and to do that you may have to turn the clock back, taking a trip down memory lane.

UNSAFE ROADS? GANG ATTACKS TECHIE FROM KERALA NEAR E-CITY

PRAVEEN KUMAR
@ Bengaluru

A 28-year-old software professional from Kerala was brutally attacked by a group of 8-10 miscreants who pulled him out of the car. The incident happened near the victim's house in Begur police station limits in the city.

George Joseph, a resident of 1st cross, Classic Paradise Layout near Electronics City, was returning home from work around 7.25 pm on Tuesday, when the incident took place.

He told The New Indian Express that he is still unable to figure out why he was attacked, as he had never seen them before nor had any issues with them. He feels he must have been attacked as he was driving a Kerala registered car, or the accused wanted to show their frustration on an outsider.

Joseph said his brand new car was damaged by the accused. He called the police control room and informed them about the attack. He later filed a complaint around 9.30 pm.

The techie said his wife is from Qatar and they had decided to live in Bengaluru after their wedding, as it is close to his hometown. The couple stays close to Begur police station. After the incident, they have decided to leave the country in six months.

"The public who had gathered asked me to drive away from the spot. They said the men who attacked me were up to no good, and warned me not to be seen by them. I still cannot understand the reason why they attacked me. Everything happened in a span of one minute. I was planning to buy an apartment but this incident has made me decide to leave the country," Joseph told The New Indian Express. The next day, police managed to arrest the accused, who claimed that Joseph had run over a person's feet.

"The accused were telling police that I ran over on one of their feet. This is false and baseless. As I was alone in the car, I cannot prove anything. I was watching videos of such attacks and now I am one of the victims," he added.

Police booked the accused for causing hurt (IPC 323), wrongful restraint (IPC 341) along with other sections of the IPC, and registered a case. "The accused have been arrested. The gang has taken law into their hands by attacking the techie," said an officer who is part of the investigation.

3 held for 'road rage' assault on techie in Varthur

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

VARTHUR police arrested three men who are accused of stopping a techie's car and attacking him, around 2.30pm on Thursday. Ashok (27) and his friend were travelling in his car on Balagere Road to DSR Riviera apartment, where he resides, when the trio, on three two-wheelers, stopped the car and started banging on the windows, demanding that Ashok step out.

One of the accused parked his two-wheeler in front of the car and hit the driver's window with his helmet. Another accused rammed the car with his scooter. Sensing danger, the techie reversed the car and drove to his apartment, where he was assaulted by the accused, who were in hot pursuit.

Ashok filed a complaint with Varthur police. The accused, identified as Ravindra, Ganesh Kumar and Keshav, all residents of Sarjapura, were arrested on Friday. Of the three, one is a food delivery agent.

The entire incident was captured by the car's dashcam. Citizens Movement, East Bengaluru, had tweeted the video along with details, and tagged the city police as well as the DGP.

"The complainant is said to have honked when the accused were riding, covering the entire road. They then followed his car and attacked him. In the video, the accused can be heard yelling at the victim for honking," said an investigating officer.

HC enhances relief by 10 times for rape survivor

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A minor rape survivor who is mentally challenged and speech impaired, was awarded R 10.50 lakh compensation by the Karnataka High Court, under the Victim Compensation Scheme, after her cause was taken up the Karnataka State Legal Services Authority (KSLSA).

"The grant of compensation to the child under the POCSO Act, either interim or final, shall not be based on the whims and fancies of the special court, but has to be determined based on Rule 9 of Rules 2020, and follow the National Legal Services Authority (NALSA) Scheme 2018," said Justice Anil B Katti. Modifying the order dated January 18, 2022, passed by the special court in Karwar, awarding Rs 1 lakh compensation while sentencing the accused, the High Court enhanced compensation to Rs 10.50 lakh.

The court said the role of special courts, while awarding interim and final compensation for the rehabilitation of the child, is more onerous, and they should adopt a pragmatic approach for the survivor's welfare. Special courts have to appreciate the evidence, nature of injury suffered by the survivor, circumstances, and consider the need for rehabilitation, medical treatment and education, to determine compensation, the court added.

In 2010, when the girl's parents and two siblings were working as labourers, they used to carry her with them. She was unable to study due to her disability. The accused, who was working with her mother, took advantage of his acquaintance with the family, and carried the girl to collect 'Bembalakai' from an areca grove, where he sexually assaulted her. A case was registered against him, based on a complaint filed by the girl's mother under Section 376 IPC and Sections 4 and 6 of the POCSO Act. While sentencing the accused, the trial court directed the District Legal Services Authority (DLSA), Karwar, to deposit Rs 1 lakh in the girl's name in a nationalised bank.

In June 2022, DLSA's member secretary requested KSLSA to release the amount. KSLSA directed DLSA to file an appeal for enhancement of compensation, as per the Model Victim Compensation Scheme Guidelines framed by NALSA, and an appeal was filed by the High Court Legal Services Committee before the high court.

Modi's popularity diminishing, people voted against communalism, corruption and price rise, says Siddaramaiah

BJP's downfall has begun from Karnataka: CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah said the downfall of the Bharatiya Janata Party has begun with its recent poll debacle in Karnataka and Prime Minister Narendra Modi's popularity is diminishing.

Launching a scathing attack on the BJP during his reply to the debate on the Governor's speech in the Council on Friday, Siddaramaiah remarked that no other Prime Minister had visited the state for election campaigning as many times as Modi did but Congress candidates won with a huge margin wherever he held roadshows and public meetings, particularly in the Old Mysuru region. Noting that the state BJP was highly-dependent on Modi, he sarcastically advised BJP members to not depend on him anymore as "the graph of his popularity is coming down".

Siddaramaiah further said the people had voted against communalism, corruption and price rise of essential commodities and for the guarantees promised by the Congress. As the BJP members took a jibe at guarantees as false promises, the CM displayed a copy of the BJP's manifesto and said people didn't believe in their assurances but trusted Congress guarantees. "The downfall of the BJP has begun from Karnataka," he said.

Taking a dig at BJP for not appointing the leader of the opposition in both the Legislative Assembly and Council, Siddaramaiah said, "It shows the political bankruptcy of the disciplined party."

Stating that the 'Shakti' scheme was successful, he thanked Dharmasthala Dharmadhikari Veerendra Heggade for writing to him about women visiting Dharmasthala praying and donating in his name. "To improve the services, the government will recruit 13,000 staff for road transport corporations and 4,000 new buses will be purchased," he added.

> For the first time, I had to present a revenue deficit budget but my next budget will be revenue surplus
> Siddaramaiah, Chief Minister

Reiterating that the guarantees will be implemented in toto and that his government would not drive Karnataka into a state of bankruptcy, the CM accused the BJP of being jealous and hence not providing rice to implement Anna Bhagya. As the BJP members staged a walkout raising slogans against the government, Siddaramaiah continued the attack saying it was the most irresponsible opposition party and an insult to the poor as issues related to them were being discussed. Chairman Basavaraj Horatti also expressed displeasure over BJP members intervening several times during the CM's reply and not respecting the instructions given by the chair.

The CM said while Rs 35,410 crore is required for the guarantee schemes for the remaining period of the current financial year, Rs 13,500 crore will be collected through taxes and Rs 8,000 crore would be borrowed. "For the first time, I had to present a revenue deficit budget but my next budget will be revenue surplus," he added.

Why expressway, vehicles turn into weapons for 'murder'

NIRAD MUDUR
Deputy Resident Editor, Karnataka
niradgmudur@newindianexpress.com

WHEN an issue turns into a political tool, all focus is on using it as a weapon to raise the heat on the opponents. While at it, the real problems linked to that issue are ignored. They fester and continue to cause damage. This is the story of the 119-Km Bengaluru-Mysuru Expressway.

While the expressway is turned into a weapon by the political parties to put each other down, the real reasons behind the high number of accidents, deaths and injuries on that road remain ignored. They are: a lack of basic driving skills among the drivers; care-a-hoot attitude of motorists about rules pertaining to safe driving; daredevil approach to driving; lack of empathy towards other motorists/people on the road; and the main being regional transport offices (RTOs) granting driving licences to the undeserving candidates without thinking about its deadly consequences.

Home Minister G Parameshwara on July 10 said since March 2023 – when Prime Minister Narendra Modi inaugurated the expressway – at least 308 accidents have taken place on this 10-lane road which stipulates a speed limit of 100 Km/hour. These have caused 100 deaths and 335 injuries, he said, attributing it to lack of scientific planning, no proper signage for safe driving, and lack of enforcement to restrict drivers within the speed limit.

Soon after the prime minister inaugurated the expressway and dedicating it to the nation on March 12, heavy rains saw a part of the newly-laid road collapsing, besides parts of the road getting flooded. Questions were raised about the road design and safety. Also questioned was the inauguration before the Rs 8,408 crore project was diligently completed. Allegations flew over the then BJP-ruled government inviting the prime minister to inaugurate the expressway to score political points ahead of the May 10-scheduled assembly polls. Other issues – like high toll levied ahead of the project being ready; access to locals and farmers on either sides of the road; proper exit and entry roads to and from locations adjoining the expressway; woes of already established businesses losing customers due to the new expressway, among others – added doses of fuel to the political bonfire made out of the project.

It won't be wrong to say that the inauguration of the project by the prime minister before its completion backfired on the BJP, while the then opposition, led by Congress, grabbed it with both hands to extract maximum benefit out of it. It also may not be wrong to say that it did play its part in turning the tide against the BJP at the polls, that too in a region that has been its Achilles' heel.

Now, a new Congress-ruled government is in place. It's time to focus on the real issue without skirting it. Roads are for motorists to drive safely. But a strange observation in our country is that improvement of road infrastructure is directly proportional to the accident rates. Better the roads, higher the accidents. Wide, well-tarred or white-topped roads lure many motorists – almost to the point of seduction – to step on the accelerator, and zoom. Somewhere in the mind, the motorist and the vehicle (more sophisticated and powerful these days) become one. No one else exists. Nothing else exists – not even the brake and the clutch, just the accelerator. And accidents happen.

Actually, most accidents do not happen. They are caused by motorists who blot out everything else. A vehicle in the hands of a motorist is a potential murder weapon when the driver thinks only about his vehicle and the road to break speed records. Boasts about achieving this are commonly heard.

It's the attitude of the drivers that is the real problem causing accidents, not the lack of scientific planning or signage. Scientific road planning and signage are necessary, and so is stringent enforcement. It is high time that the government took note of this...and acted stringently!

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

THE number of Japanese companies expanding into Karnataka is steadily increasing, and as of October 2022, 228 companies have set up 537 offices across the state, said Tsutomu Nakane, Consul General of Japan in Bengaluru.

Speaking at India-Japan Business Summit organised by Bangalore Chamber of Industry and Commerce (BCIC) in collaboration with PWC and the Indo-Japan Business Council (IJBC) on Friday, Nakane said cooperation between Japan and Karnataka portrays that business is not only important for the development of bilateral relations but is also of great importance to the world.

"By investing in or setting up industry in India, Japanese companies can expand their exports to Middle East countries and Africa through India. Japan-India business cooperation will bring synergy to both economies by combining Japanese manufacturing know-how with India's IT capabilities," he added.

Delivering the inaugural address, L Ravindran, President BCIC, said, "With Japan's commitment to invest five trillion dollars in India as announced by their former Prime Minister in 2022 there is a huge potential for small and medium enterprises in Japan to collaborate and conduct business with similar enterprises in India. It is essential to prioritise specific sectors such as infrastructure, advanced manufacturing, global mobility, information technology and healthcare as they play a pivotal role in shaping their collective future and achieving investment targets."

BCIC has set up an office in Japan with a three-pronged strategy to promote Karnataka as an investment destination, take a delegation of industrialists from Karnataka to Japan and host a delegation of industrialists from Japan to Karnataka, he added.

The day-long summit was attended by over 200 delegates representing government, industry, and academia.

Accused had borrowed ₹30-40 lakh from Jain monk for friends, himself

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Belagavi

NARAYAN Mali, the main accused in the murder of Jain monk Kamkumar Nandi Maharaj of Hirekodi near Belagavi, had borrowed Rs 30-40 lakh for his friends and himself from the monk, the police investigation has revealed.

Mali had borrowed Rs 5 lakh for himself and stood surety for several lakhs of loans given out to his friends, investigators said. "I strongly suspect that Mali collected all the money from the monk, but did not give it to his friends. For the past few weeks, he was under intense pressure from the monk to return the money. As he did not have so much money, he decided to get rid of the monk," said the chief investigating police officer.

Before killing the monk, Mali burnt the monk's dairy to destroy evidence of the money given out to his friends. "We tried to find out other angles to the murder, but found that the accused decided to kill the monk following pressure from him," the police officer added.

In the meantime, the police have recovered the motorbike on which the accused had taken the body of the monk after the murder. Mali and Hasansab Dhalayat, who was Mali's driver and second accused in the case, had taken the body to Katakbhavi village and dumped it in a well after cutting the body into several pieces.

ALL PARAMETERS NORMAL, SAYS PROJECT DIRECTOR

IN the sixth orbit — the injection orbit — it will be propelled into a lunar transfer trajectory before the lunar gravity capture happens in the first week. Once in the Lunar gravity field, the propulsion module will make seven progressively lowered orbits until it settles in a circular polar orbit 100km from the lunar surface. It will then release the lander, which will find a suitable landing spot using sensors to make a soft-landing on August 23 or 24 near the lunar south pole before deploying the rover to conduct on-site experiments. Chandrayaan 3 is expected to make the lunar soft-landing at a site which is 69.36 degrees south and 32.34 degrees east near the moon's south pole, where there will be ample sunlight to charge the solar panels. Upon landing, it will operate for one lunar day, which is approximately 14 earth days.

The project director P Veeramuthuvel said all parameters of the propulsion module and the lander, including power generation, were normal. Mission director S Mohana Kumar said the LVM3 rocket has once again proved to be the most reliable heavy-lift vehicle of ISRO. "The 'Fat Boy' (as LVM3-M4 is fondly called for its heavy-lift capabilities) has done its job," he beamed. "We are in the process of increasing the launch frequency of this vehicle considering the national requirements as well as satellite demands. Today's mission was a 'penance' of many in ISRO," he said.

A successful Chandrayaan 3 mission would emerge as redemption for Indian space scientists who had been dejected at the failure of the preceding Chandrayaan 2's.

Madras HC upholds arrest of TN minister

R SIVAKUMAR @CHENNAI

JUSTICE CV Karthikeyan of the Madras High Court on Friday upheld the arrest of Minister V Senthil Balaji, currently under post-operative care at a private hospital in Chennai, under the prevention of money laundering act for receiving proceeds of crime obtained through a cash-for-jobs scam.

A habeas corpus petition filed by S Megala, the minister's wife, was referred to Justice Karthikeyan after a two-judge bench delivered a split verdict on the legality of the arrest. While Justice J Nisha Banu held the arrest illegal, ordered immediate release of the minister, and ruled that the ED lacked the power to take the minister into custody for interrogation, co-judge Justice D Bharatha Chakravarthy ruled there was no illegality in the arrest and the ED has the right to take him under custody for interrogation. He also dismissed the HCP.

Justice Karthikeyan, who gave a patient hearing to the arguments advanced by senior counsels Kapil Sibal and NR Elango for the petitioner, and Solicitor General Tushar Mehta for the ED, concurred with the rulings of Justice Bharatha Chakravarthy on the three main points of contention --- maintainability of the HCP, legality of arrest and right of the ED to take him under custody for interrogation, and exclusion of hospitalisation period from calculating the custody period. The judge also said Senthil Balaji cannot 'proclaim ignorance' of the grounds of arrest and seek indulgence of this court when the ED officials were at his doors since June 13 morning.

He also allowed exclusion of hospitalisation period to decide on granting of custody for interrogation. Saying the HCP would be maintainable in exceptional circumstances, which does not fit in this, the judge said since the remand order was passed by a competent court, the relief sought in the HCP cannot be granted.

Watch Western Ghats eco-status live now

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

RESEARCHERS from Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru have released a report and announced the launch of the Western Ghats Spatial Decision Support System (WGDDSS) which shows the status of the ecologically sensitive regions.

One of the co- authors Prof TV Ramachandra, from Centre for Ecological Sciences, told TNIE that for the first time people, activists and even government officials will be able to see the ground situation of the forests, especially the rapidly degrading Western Ghats. On the webportal, viewers can see the region wise and grid wise live visuals of the Western Ghats, he said. This information will help in planning as per Biodiversity Act 2002.

As per the preliminary findings of the report, using temporal remote sensing data, serious concerns have been highlighted on the status of forests and conservation options. Deforestation and mismanagement is evident and the current extent of forest ecosystems which have been threatening water security.

The WGDDSS will help to visualize the regions based on eco- sensitiveness, the variables used for computing eco- sensitiveness and aid in decision making at decentralized levels (including municipal council, local forest department etc.)

The study was undertaken by Prof Ramachandra along with Bharath Setturu, Vinay S, M D Subash Chandran, Abhishek Baghel and Bharath H Aithal.

Researchers said the spatiotemporal analyses of land use highlighted the anthropogenic induced developmental thrust which caused a loss of 5% evergreen forest cover with an increase of 4.5% built-up cover and 9% agriculture area.

"Fragmentation analyses highlighted that interior forest constituted only 25% of the forest landmass. It depicts the fragmentation pressure and impact of local ecology. A Grid wise analysis showed that 32% of the area under ecologically sensitive region (ESR) has been denoted as very high ecological fragility. The ESR analysis depicts 63,148 sqkm area under very high ecological fragility and 27,646 sqkm area as high ecological fragility," said TV Ramachandra.

The report also showed that 48,490 sqm is moderately sensitive and 20,716 sqkm has been marked as low in ecological fragility.

'These surgeries can be harmful to mental health'

"I perform 30 to 40 gynecomastia procedures in a month. When individuals come for consultation, they cite reasons such as being ashamed of how they look in public, unable to change dress in public rooms and inability to go swimming bare body," he said.

Another prominent surgery is "mommy makeover" where procedures are performed at one go for breast lift, tummy tuck, and liposuction of the stomach and lower body. Dr Ram performs 3 to 4 such surgeries every month in the city.

Discouraging such surgeries, Suruchi Shah, mental health expert, said, "The cosmetic surgeries send a message to the youth that they need to look a certain way. This perfection to be displayed at all times is sending an underlined message which can be dangerous to their mental health."

However, experts opined that some of the surgeries help enhance the function of certain body parts.

A rhinoplasty improves breathing and reduces sinusitis by shaping the nose.

Breast reduction can reduce strain on the back and shoulders and help with pain in those areas. Liposuction can improve body contour and reduce stress on the knees.

14 Indian states have better resilience to floods: Study

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

AS per the report released by Council on Energy, Environment and Water (CEEW), on Thursday, 14 Indian states have better resilience to floods due to availability, accessibility and effectiveness of early warning systems.

The report stated that states such as Assam, Odisha, Sikkim, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Jharkhand, and Kerala tops the list. The report titled- 'Strengthening India's Disaster Preparedness with Technology: A Case for Effective Early Warning Systems', highlighted that early warning systems were a critical component of building climate resilience as the country is experiencing extreme weather events such as floods and cyclones recently. These early warnings are also a part of disaster risk reduction, a key focus area under India's G20 Presidency.

The report also noted that cyclone warnings were available to 100% of the exposed population in the country. It noted that coastal states such as Andhra Pradesh, Odisha, Goa, Karnataka, Kerala and West Bengal were at the forefront of building resilience by establishing effective cyclone early warning systems. As cyclones increase in frequency with warming oceans, inland states in the path of these cyclonic storms will also need to strengthen resilience.

The 2021 study found that 27 Indian states and union territories were vulnerable to extreme hydromet disasters and their compounded impacts. "The country suffered damages worth Rs 62,000 crore due to extreme flood and cyclone events in 2021 alone. Currently, India's cyclone early warning systems are much more robust than its flood ones. But as each state faces an increase in the frequency and intensity of climatic extremes, it is important to build effective early warning systems for all," quoted the report.

The CEEW study calculated resilience to floods and cyclones as a sum of availability (presence of early warning stations), accessibility (share of people who have access to information, including phones) and effectiveness (presence of governance and financial frameworks) of early warning systems.

DELHI FLOODS: CENTRE, STATE MUST JOINTLY FIND LASTING SOLUTION

The national capital has gone under water. The rise of River Yamuna's water level has marooned Delhi's iconic sites: from the historic Red Fort to the most revered Raj Ghat memorial, water has reached everywhere. In the last 33 years, Yamuna has breached the 'danger level' in the capital city over 25 times. The river's flow is largely regulated by the precipitation in its upper catchment area and its lower catchment area. While the former spans from the Himalayas to Haryana, the latter includes areas from Haryana to Old Delhi. The heavy rains in northern India have put pressure on Haryana's storage system, forcing the authorities in that state to release water from the Hathnikund barrage into River Yamuna. This has resulted in the rise in Yamuna's water level, which has predominantly affected Delhi's low-lying areas. However, some other parts of the capital are also getting waterlogged as a result of the backflow from the city's 18 major drains due to the swollen Yamuna. Other drains spanning over 2000 km along the roads are also clogged with solid municipal waste. These drains, along with the storm water drains, need urgent cleaning and desilting.

Rivers flow through cities across the world. Cities, in fact, were built on the banks of rivers. But nowhere does one see such an annual calamity-like situation. This is because those governments are committed to protecting the lives and property of their people. The politicians in Delhi have, however, made the situation worse by engaging in ugly blame games on national television. The ruling Aam Aadmi Party accused the BJP of deliberately causing floods in the capital, claiming that the water from BJP-ruled Haryana's Hathnikund barrage could have instead been released into the east and west Yamuna canals, therefore saving Delhi.

Ministers in the state government have also accused the Central and state government officials of not responding to their calls to help the people. Delhi CM Arvind Kejriwal wrote to the Centre, requesting it to stop Haryana from releasing water into Yamuna. The Centre responded by saying that not releasing water from Hathnikund would cause a bigger problem. As a long-term measure, the Central and state governments must jointly build strong and higher embankments to prevent future flooding in the low-lying areas. Political battles aside, both sides must realise that people's lives are at stake here. It is high time they stop sparring and find a lasting solution to Delhi's woes.

MSME DEFAULTS RISE CAN WORRY BANKS

The banking sector's bad loans are steadily declining, but analysts are sensing early signs of trouble from the retail and MSME sectors. If last month, none other than the RBI flagged concerns over 7% of retail borrowers missing monthly payments in its bi-annual Financial Stability Report, a joint Assocham-Crisil study in May warned of MSME sector bad loans likely touching double digits by FY24. The reports, however, reason that either sector's anticipated stress was unlikely to cause an imminent risk at any individual bank level or to the systemic stability of the banking sector. That's a relief. Still, banks and the regulator shouldn't look the other way given the unstoppable pace at which MSME credit and, in particular, retail loans have been growing.

Although the gross NPAs of retail loans stood low at 1.4% of total advances in March 2023, the share of 'special mention accounts' (loans that are just inches away from turning bad) was relatively high at 7.4% and accounted for a tenth of banks' retail assets portfolio, according to the RBI. These may not be alarming levels, but it's only appropriate to pay close attention to the breakneck speed with which households' credit growth is rising. Credit cards seem to lack all limits, with the latest data showing spending at an all-time high of ₹1.4 lakh crore in May. Lenders must be vigilant before the 'quick to borrow, never to pay' trend sets in. The growth in unsecured loans has surpassed secured loans already, and high inflation and interest rates could affect borrowers' ability to repay amid the potential stress on household balance sheets, as the RBI had pointed out.

Likewise, the MSME sector has witnessed a healthy double-digit growth for some time. As bankers acknowledge, some bad loans are inevitable when the industry clocks 18–20% annual growth rates. Banks barely managed to anchor MSME NPAs below 10% last fiscal, thanks to write-offs and one-off resolution schemes, and the current fiscal could have been better, but the exports slowdown and high interest rates threw a monkey wrench in the process. If MSME bad loans touch double digits as estimated, they will be the only black spot on the whiteboard as the banking sector's overall NPAs are expected to see a decadal low of 4% this fiscal year.

QUICK TAKE

ABORTION WOE OF MINOR RAPE VICTIMS

A 12-year-old deaf and mute rape survivor from UP got the court's permission this week to abort her pregnancy. Her foetus is already 25 weeks old. Should minor rape survivors need legal sanction to abort? Pregnancy itself can be life-threatening to a minor. In 2017, the Supreme Court said minor girls shouldn't wait for consent because crucial time is lost in proceedings, and the delay might prove risky. Hundreds of such pleas are pending nationwide. The SC should devise a medico-legal system for default early abortion in these instances and clarify that doctors undertaking such procedures will not attract criminal prosecution.

Within the present Indian Statistical Service, there is little expertise in survey design, and most of the time is spent authoring unimaginative reports

MOSPI: CRITICS FROM INSIDE AND OUTSIDE

BIBEK DEBROY
Chairman, Economic Advisory Council to the PM

In June 2023, Pramit Bhattacharya authored an excellent working paper for Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. It is titled India's Statistical System: Past, Present, Future and starts with a historical sketch that goes back to the colonial period. While this is a rich paper, let me give a few selective quotes.

(1) "Gadgil argued that a poor country such as India should not invest in a new statistical organisation. Instead, the resources earmarked for NSS should strengthen administrative data systems and upgrade the state statistical bureaus. He supported Sukhatme's contention that statistics should be collected by individual ministries and departments that had domain knowledge, not by an outside agency. Mahalanobis argued that an independent survey agency was essential to collect unbiased data since departmental administrators have a strong incentive to misreport figures." Today, no one will posit the administrative data versus census/survey as either/or. Both have their uses. Administrative data tends to be almost real-time, but incentive structures are such that one can't blindly trust such data (think of dashboards). The evident "success" in administrative data must be validated through census/surveys.

(2) "After the NSS was moved out of ISI, the organic link between the world of statistical research and official statistics was ruptured. The NSSO governing council headed by a nonofficial expert could only partially fill that void. Some of the scientific rigour and flexibility of the NSS program was lost." I think this is related to a broader issue, that of the Indian Statistical Service (ISS). India has produced, and continues to produce, some of the best statisticians in the world, and the ISI (Indian Statistical Institute) brand (particularly B. Stat) is recognised everywhere. But, unlike in the past, do these famous statisticians and excellent students join ISS today? If ISS has deteriorated, and it is the foundation for India's official statistics, without revamping the service, how can one possibly revamp India's statistical system?

(3) "A growing band of economic reformers began pressuring the NSSO to redo the old questionnaires. The ham-handed manner in which those changes were introduced contaminated the results of the 1999–2000 consumption expenditure survey. The official poverty estimates based on that round were discredited, and it took several years to clarify the status of poverty in India." We will return to this point.

(4) "Four years after the Rangarajan Commission submitted its report, the union government decided to act on it. In 2005, a government resolution announced the establishment of the National Statistical Commission (NSC). It promised that the commission would receive statutory backing 'within one year.' … Eighteen years after that resolution, the union government has yet to enact a law providing statutory backing to the NSC. The NSC has failed to realise most of its objectives."

SOUMYADIP SINHA

(5) "Until the late 1990s, the NSSO regional offices had the power to employ field investigators locally. In 1997, the Fifth Central Pay Commission, which sets guidelines for HR policies across central ministries, recommended a new cadre called the Subordinate Statistical Service to improve the promotion prospects of field enumerators and junior officers. … The new HR policy disrupted the NSSO's field operations."

(6) "India's statistical system stands at the crossroads today. On the one hand, there is a danger that the statistical system could be marginalised further to suppress inconvenient facts. On the other hand, the statistical crisis presents an opportunity for inexpensive reforms that can sharpen India's competitive edge in the global economy. … A new reforms commission can outline a road map for reforms and reassure all stakeholders about the government's seriousness in fixing a major governance deficit."

Pramit Bhattacharya's stock-taking paper is a critique of the official statistical system, and in some sections, strong words are used, such as that on recent controversies. But the broader point is that the statistical system has not only been criticised by those who oppose the government and are outside it but also by those who work for the government and, thus, support its policies. Witness several papers and articles by three members of the Economic Advisory Council to the Prime Minister (Bibek Debroy, Sanjeev Sanyal, Shamika Ravi).

Indeed, the Rangarajan Commission was a long time ago (2001), and it is a good idea to set up a new reforms commission (quote 6) to set up a road map, especially because India will be a member of the UN Statistical Commission from 2024. On the point in quote (4), though, I am sceptical. There were cogent reasons for why the Madhav Menon Committee's (2011) recommendation of giving statutory backing to NSC (making it answerable to Parliament) wasn't accepted. It wasn't merely inertia and protecting one's turf.

To quote from the paper again, "Sen's successor (Pronab Sen's), T. C. A. Anant, stalled the Menon committee proposals since they would have constrained the powers of the chief statistician, according to a former Indian Statistical Service (ISS) officer who was posted at the NSC secretariat during those years. The conflict between the chief statistician and the NSC had begun in the Tendulkar-Sen era (Suresh Tendulkar)." Yes, there is a need to reconcile the roles of the Chief Statistician as head of MOSPI (Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation) and the Secretary of NSC. However, statutory backing is likely to make NSC independent but more irrelevant.

While one can continue to argue on that, I don't think anyone can argue on quote (2), (3) and (5), all highlighting a serious human resources issue. Within the present ISS, there is little expertise in survey design, and most of the time is spent authoring unimaginative reports. That's why the processing of census (not just population census) and survey results is delayed. That's why questions are ham-handed (quote 3), inconsistent and non-comparable over time. Every survey (through a working group) starts afresh, ignoring what was asked earlier for that particular survey and other surveys too. That's the reason one has to fish around for enumerators in this day and age.

Every questionnaire (both census and survey) can be streamlined and simplified so that it is completed in 20 minutes. How many people have the time and inclination to respond to a questionnaire that takes two hours to complete? If supporters and critics of the government agree on any single matter, this is a rare phenomenon. Hence, there is no question that MOSPI needs to take this seriously.

LESSONS FROM THE VIOLENT WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT POLL

SHIKHA MUKERJEE
Senior journalist

If confirmation were necessary that violence begets violence, look no further than the West Bengal panchayat election of 2023. In the 41 days since the election was announced on June 8, the number of dead has crossed 42, and it could rise. Seventeen people were killed on polling day alone. In the days that followed, more people died. The opposition is unanimous that the panchayat election was a travesty of democratic electoral politics.

However, the violence and the death toll point to a significant change in West Bengal's political dynamics. The competition this time around was multipolar. Contrary to the dominant narrative that the panchayat election was a binary contest between the Trinamool Congress (TMC) and the BJP—the former a redoubtable regional party and the latter an equally formidable national behemoth—it turned out to be a four-way fight, with the Communist Party of India (Marxist) significantly improving its vote share to 12.96%, the Congress increasing its vote share to 6.42%, and the Indian Secular Front (ISF), a Left ally, picking up just under 1% of the vote share.

The distribution of votes shows that the TMC has increased its vote share to 51.14% in rural West Bengal. In the 2021 State Assembly election, its vote share was 47.93%. Though this is a bad comparison, it has significance for other reasons. The second noteworthy change is the BJP's vote share: in rural West Bengal, its popularity has dwindled to 22.88%, which is an over 16% drop compared with the party's vote share in 2021, when it touched 38.1%. And BJP's expansion in West Bengal has been primarily in the countryside and small towns.

The decline in BJP's vote share is hugely significant, indicating a fall in its rural support base. The increase in vote shares registered by all other parties implies that the BJP's votes have been split and redistributed between the TMC, CPI(M), Congress and ISF. If improvements in the opposition party vote share are a measure of the state of health in elected democracies, then West Bengal's political health has improved since 2021.

This pulling away of support among rural voters will impact the BJP's overall outcomes in the 2024 Lok Sabha election, where every seat it fails to retain makes it much tougher to match the impressive victory of Narendra Modi in 2019. It will probably increase Mamata Banerjee's chances of certainly retaining the 22 Lok Sabha seats her party won in 2019, and it could take her close to fulfilling her desired target of winning at least 34 of 42 seats in 2024.

Since 2019, when Mamata faced the humiliating truth that her party had retained only 22 Lok Sabha seats and the BJP had zoomed to an 18-seat tally, it has been her one-point agenda to win big in 2024. By recapturing the rural bases that had gone over to the BJP, Mamata has repositioned the TMC as the party with the widest grassroots connection.

PTI

> The violence that erupted at the start of the panchayat election process is a form of irreducible truth in politics and popular sovereignty, as scholars have argued in the Indian context

By sending out a fact-finding committee led by Ravi Shankar Prasad to visit mostly North Bengal—the war zone with the heaviest casualties—the BJP made a pre-emptive move even before the counting of ballots ended. That move drew attention to the obvious: BJP has been strangely selective about the locations where it chose to confront the TMC and the other opposition parties.

It also emphasised that the TMC had suffered the most in the violence that was peculiarly concentrated in Murshidabad, Malda, Cooch Behar, and pockets of North Dinajpur, South and North 24 Parganas. The number of BJP supporters or workers killed in the violence was the lowest. The number of dead who belonged to the ISF exceeded that of the BJP and even the CPI(M) and Congress.

BJP's rural strongholds are not concentrated entirely in the North Bengal districts. It also picked up panchayat and parliamentary seats from the western districts of Bankura, Purulia, Jhargram, West Midnapore and West Burdwan in 2018 and 2019. The party's 77-seat victory in the 2021 State Assembly elections—that made it the official opposition to the TMC and catapulted the vociferous Suvendu Adhikari to the top of the BJP celebrity tree—was largely from the strongholds in North Bengal as well as the western districts.

Oddly enough, the western districts were not the arenas of violence. The fight between the TMC, BJP and the Congress-CPI(M) did not break out with murderous assaults in these places. It appears that the BJP has abdicated its responsibility to represent the rural and tribal voters of economically weaker Bankura, Purulia, Jhargram, and West Midnapore. Instead, it concentrated its attention on retaining its enclaves in North Bengal. By relinquishing its interest in these districts, the BJP enabled the TMC to stage a big comeback in the just-concluded panchayat election, improving the latter's prospects in the forthcoming 2024 elections at the cost of its arch-rival—all without engaging in a fight.

The violence that erupted at the start of the panchayat election process is a form of irreducible truth in politics and popular sovereignty, as scholars have argued in the Indian context. Violence in politics is both an overt and an underlying force. Political scientist Thomas Blom Hansen noted that "elections make the potential of violence more than ever present and constant."

It may be too early to conclude that this panchayat election has initiated a new realignment of forces and equations in West Bengal politics. The decline in the BJP's vote share and the increase in the vote shares of other political parties indicate changes in voter preference. This may be a transient phenomenon, or it could be a portent of the future. The 2024 elections will be another test.

Delhi floods

As the unprecedented swelling of the Yamuna due to heavy rain poses challenges to the capital city, the 25% shortage of drinking water has aggravated the plight of the people. It is really disheartening. People are deprived of basic needs. It is an urgent call for the government to alleviate their pain, fulfill their needs and save their lives.

This is with reference to Why more vehicle owners don't use metro? B.PAC to find out (July 14). Despite Bengaluru being known for its traffic chaos, its residents still avoid the metro transport as it doesn't cover the whole city. Bihar govt defends in SC early release of former MP Anand Mohan, convicted of IAS officer Krishnaiah's murder

'Victim's status no factor to deny remission'

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

DEFENDING the early release of former Bihar MP Anand Mohan who was serving life imprisonment for lynching Gopal Ganj DM G Krishnaiah in 1994, the Bihar government has told the Supreme Court that the victim's status cannot be a factor to grant or refuse remission.

"The status of a victim cannot be a factor for grant or refusal of remission...the remission of the Respondent No.4 (Mohan) was considered in accordance with the policy and as per the procedure prescribed," the affidavit stated.

The affidavit has been filed in response to a plea by victim's wife Uma Krishnaiah challenging the remission granted to Mohan who was released on April 24 after 14 years in jail.

A bench of Justices Surya Kant and JK Maheshwari had earlier sought response of the Bihar government, Anand Mohan and the Centre in the plea filed by Uma Krishnaiah. She in her plea has challenged the circular dated April 10 issued by the Bihar Home Department (Prisons) which made persons convicted for murder of public servant eligible for remission and Mohan's subsequent release. "It is a settled principle of law that the remission policy of the State framed either under Cr.P.C or under Article 161 of the Constitution, the Judicial interference is very limited and only in rarest of rare cases," the affidavit stated.

The Bihar government said 2012 prison rules were changed on April 10 to remove the prohibition against premature release of life convicts guilty of murdering public servants after heeding to a variety of relevant factors and the fact that no such distinction existed in the similar rules which were framed by other states such as Delhi, Punjab and Haryana.

"The punishment for murder of general public or a public servant is same. On the one hand, the life convict prisoner guilty of murder of general public is considered eligible for premature release and on the other hand, the life convict prisoner guilty of murder of a public servant is not eligible for consideration for premature release. The discrimination on the basis of status of a victim was sought to be removed," the affidavit had said.

Stating the state's decision have been taken on extraneous considerations, Uma in her plea said the state while releasing Mohan ignored relevant factors such as conduct of the prisoner in the jail, past criminal antecedents. It has also been contended that state's amendment to its remission policy according to which it did not consider the fact of Mohan being convicted for murder of public servants on duty is contrary to public policy and amounts to demoralising the public servants. The plea sought to apply the state policy which was prevalent at the time of the offence.

Shah releases plan to rev up farm bodies through co-ops

AMIT MUKHERJEE @ New Delhi

IN A bid to strengthen the country's farming sector, the government on Friday released an action plan for formation of 1,100 new Farmer Producer Organisations (FPO). The FPOs are entities collectively formed by farmers, enabling them to pool in resources and improve their produces and profits.

The plan was released by Union Home Minister Amit Shah during the inaugural session of the day-long mega conclave 'Strengthening PACS (primary agricultural credit society) through FPOs', organised by the National Cooperative Development Corporation, in collaboration with the Union Ministry of Cooperation in the national capital.

In his address, the home minister said that "in such a large country, where about 65 crore people are engaged in agriculture, it has become very essential to revive the cooperative movement, modernise it, bring transparency in it and aim to achieve new heights."

Shah said in the field of agriculture and rural development, every person can be made prosperous only through cooperative movements. He further said that it does not matter whether one has capital or not, "but if one has the courage and passion to work hard and the ability to take oneself forward, then the cooperative movement is a great medium to make those who lack capital prosperous."

Union home minister Amit Shah addresses the national mega conclave on 'Strengthening PACS through FPOs' in New Delhi on Friday | PTI

According to Shah, the Modi government has taken adequate initiatives to extend support at every level — from the production to marketing the products — for the FPOs made through PACS. These FPOs have the highest potential to make farmers prosperous, and all associated ministries will work together with the mantra of three-pronged rural development and prosperity through PACS, FPOs and self-help groups, Shah asserted.

"We have to move away from traditional methods and adopt modern methods of agriculture with time to make the country's marginal farmers prosperous, and PACs' FPO is the beginning of this," the minister added.

The initiative covers economic activities based on agriculture, animal husbandry and fisheries that are the backbone of the Indian economy. These three sectors make up 18 per cent of India's GDP today, boosting them means boosting the country's economy, he said.

BJP's Pasmanda outreach to concentrate on Kalam's legacy

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

AROUND nine months ahead of the 2024 parliamentary polls, the ruling BJP is focusing on the Pasmanda (left out) Muslims and has devised a special outreach programme that carries forward the legacy of former President APJ Abdul Kalam, the country's Missile Man.

In a meeting on Thursday at the party headquarters, the party's Minority Morcha under the chairmanship of Jamal Siddiqui decided to kick it off from July 27, the death anniversary of Kalam, till his birthday on October 15.

Speaking to media, Siddiqui said the outreach, named 'Pasmanda Sneh Samvad Yatra' with a catchy tagline 'Swabhiman se utthaan ki Ore'(from self-respect to uplifting lives), will initially start from 13 states of north and west India where Pasmandas population is significantly high.

"Our PM wants Pasmanda Muslim populations developed and join the mainstream dedicated to development without discrimination. Our outreach, which is soon to be approved by BJP chief JP Nadda, will have wider reach among the people belonging to the Pasmanda community comprising 80% of the Muslim population," he said.

National security strategy must evolve in line with changes in geopolitics: CDS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

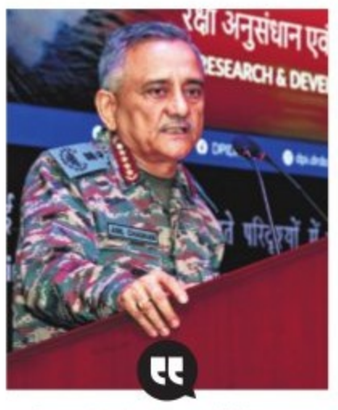
AFFIRMING his views on a National Security Strategy (NSS), Chief of Defence Staff (CDS) General Anil Chauhan on Friday pointed towards formulation of an NSS that absorbs the changes in the international geopolitics.

Chauhan said that "international geopolitics is in a flux and the national strategy should aim to absorb the changes in such a way that it meets the challenges and exploits the opportunities."

The CDS also highlighted that the armed forces are investing in technology. Technology is needed more as India is in the process of reorganising its war-fighting structure into theatres, he said.

Chauhan was delivering the inaugural speech at the DRDO Directors' Conclave, an annual event of Defence Research and Development Organisation, in New Delhi on Friday. He stressed the need to perform, reform, transform, inform and conform to meet the emerging challenges.

India does not have a National Security Strategy. NSS is an all-encompassing and overarching document for a nation providing a direction to employ various instruments of national power — diplomatic, informational, military and economic — to advance and protect its national interests from external and internal threats.



Theaterisation is one of the most ambitious changes with far-reaching implications attempted post-Independence

General Anil Chauhan, Chief of Defence Staff

Referring to the "technology requirements emerging from theaterisation", he said superiority in technology and tactics is the need of the hour and Indian armed forces are investing in new technologies to win engagements.

Highlighting the principles of jointness, integration and theaterisation, the General said that in the national security realm, the concept of theaterisation is a fundamental change that is on the anvil.

"It is one of the most ambitious changes with far-reaching implications attempted post-Independence. The start on this journey depends on the right steps being taken first towards jointness and integration. Theaterisation involves creation of tri-services theatre-specific structures for effective response along the entire spectrum of conflict," he explained.

The integration in the physical domain aims to achieve a multiplier effect as it combines the unique capabilities of the Services through integrated processes and structures to increase the war fighting capability, he said.

Dr Samir V Kamat, secretary of the Department of Defence R&D and chairman of DRDO, highlighted the changes occurring in the nature of warfare and criticality involved in them. He stressed on the need to reform and transform the perspectives in tandem with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's goal of Aatmanirbharta and Make in India.

General Chauhan released the DRDO's second list of systems and subsystems for industry to design, develop and manufacture, in line with Aatmanirbhar Bharat. This second list of DRDO is in continuation to the list of 108 items released earlier.

Boost to research on autism, neuro disorders as diagnosis simplified

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @ New Delhi

IN A development that could help millions of children with autism and related neuro-developmental disorders in India and other low-income countries, a new app that tells the autism behaviour has been successfully tested.

At present, a diagnosis of autism typically depends on clinical assessments by highly-trained professionals, using rich resources. It is a challenge in low-income settings.

The new app called START (Screening Tools for Autism Risk using Technology) was tested at homes by non-specialist healthcare workers, educated to high school level, using researchers from India, the UK and US. The app was tested with 131 two- to eleven-year-olds living in poor neighbourhoods of Delhi.

The research was funded by a grant from UKRI Medical Research Council Global Challenges Research Fund.

Children with autistic conditions preferred looking at geometric patterns rather than social scenes. They are fascinated by predictable, repetitive sensory stimuli and have more trouble completing precise tasks with their hands.

The app includes tasks, a questionnaire, and observational assessments of aspects of behaviour that index social, sensory and motor function. Individual metrics from each task show a consistent pattern of differences between typically and atypically developing children. Combining the information from multiple measures within the app resulted in high classification accuracy for the three groups of children – autism spectrum conditions; intellectual disability and typically developing.

The app was 86 per cent accurate in identifying children with any neurodevelopmental disorders, and 78 per cent accurate in specifically identifying autism.

This performance is significantly higher than standard screening assessments for neurodevelopmental disorders used by non-specialists. The results could help faster identification of children with autism.

Despite warning, 'cancerous diet sugar' rampant

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @ New Delhi

DESPITE the World Health Organisation's (WHO) warning that aspartame used in food products such as diet soda and sugar-free gums could be "possibly carcinogenic to humans", many Indians commonly consume foods with this low-calorie, popular artificial sweetener, the latest survey has found.

The survey conducted on over 23,000 people from 295 districts in India found that one in three of those consuming artificial sweeteners does so in the form of diet soda drinks and sugar-free gums; 26 per cent took it in the form of energy drinks, while 18 per cent consumed it as sugar-free chocolates and ice-creams.

The survey by LocalCircles, India's leading community social media platform, found that 38 per cent of Indians confirmed consuming foods with artificial sweeteners every month. But when informed of the WHO warning, 91 per cent said they want food brands to display the usage of artificial sweeteners prominently on the front of the pack.

WHO's International Agency for Research on Cancer, along with Food and Agriculture Organisation and Joint Expert Committee on Food Additives carried out its first-ever evaluation of the carcinogenic level of aspartame from June 6-13.

According to WHO, aspartame is an artificial (chemical) sweetener that is widely used in various food and beverage products ever since the 1980s. It is used in diet drinks, chewing gum, gelatin, ice cream, dairy products such as yoghurt, breakfast cereal, toothpaste, and medications such as cough drops and chewable vitamins.

However, WHO also said on Thursday that aspartame, which is known for its sugar-free properties, is safe in limited quantities and there is a need for more investigations on its classification.

Aspartame is also recognised as a tabletop sweetener, which is marketed as a suitable option for people looking for 'diet,' 'zero sugar' or 'no' or 'low-calorie' alternatives.

In May this year, WHO warned against artificial sweeteners stating that these products do not help in weight loss and can increase the risk of type 2 diabetes and cardiovascular diseases.

In India, the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India has approved six artificial sweeteners: saccharin sodium, aspartame, acesulfame potassium, sucralose, neotame, and isomaltulose for use in food.

According to LocalCircles founder Sachin Taparia, "A large number of products are available in the market now, which by default contain artificial sweeteners and are being heavily consumed by not only adults but also children."

"Given the apparent misconception among people that artificial sweeteners are less of an evil compared to sugar or honey, the government should mount a campaign to educate people on the issue," he said.

While 42% of respondents of the survey were from Tier 1 cities, the rest were from smaller cities and rural areas, indicating the reach of such foods in the country.

Water levels rise in Himachal dams

Bhakra board monitoring situation; flood-hit people to spend nights on rooftops in U'khand

HARPREET BAJWA & NARENDRA SETHI @ Chandigarh/Dehradun

AS the gushing waters from rivers, drains and barrages batter north-western belt of the country, the Central Water Commission (CWC) on July 13 revealed that the water levels in the Bhakra, Pong and Kol dams in Himachal Pradesh are almost double than the normal for this time of the year. The combined storage of these three dams is 97% above the past 10-year average.

The water level in Thein Dam in Punjab, too, is 64% more than the decade-long average.

At least 108 persons have died, an equal number of people injured and at least a dozen are missing due to rain-related incidents and road accidents since the onset of monsoon on June 24 till July 13. The bodies of people killed in flash floods are being recovered in Kullu and Mandi districts. So far 53 landslides and 22 flashfloods have hit the state, as per the data released today evening by the Himachal emergency operations centre. The state is likely to get heavy rain at isolated places till July 18 and the MeT office has issued yellow alert.

The CWC data says the total combined capacity of Bhakra, Pong and Kol dams is 12.475 billion cubic metres (BCM) and at present the storage is 7.606 BCM. Last year at this time it was 2.265 BCM and the average storage has been 3.855 BCM.

While yesterday the water level at Bhakra was 497.18 meters against the reservoir level of 512.06 meters. Thus the reservoir of the dam is filled up to 56% of its total capacity this year compared to 21% at the same time last year. The average of the last 10 years is 37%.

The picture is no different at the Pong dam as the water level at the dam was 416.22 m yesterday against the total level of 423.67 meters, thus 67% of the dam is full compared to 15% at the same time last year.

Sources said due to heavy rains in the catchment areas of these dams, the inflow into these dams had been extraordinarily high since last week. The authorities had decided not to release excess water from these dams as already there is a heavy water influx in rivers and streams downstream and many areas are flooded.

The Bhakra Beas Management Board is monitoring the situation and a decision to release additional water from these dams would be taken in consultation with the partner states depending on the level of inflows and the demand for water, said sources.

The Himachal police are now focusing on inaccessible areas and low mobile connectivity to trace stranded persons. "Rescue operation is on ," said officiating DGP Satwant Atwal.

Ajit gets finance in Maha reshuffle

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

IN the brief history of CM Eknath Shinde-led Shiv Sena, a moment came months ago: prominent leaders, then in the ruling Sena and tied to the MVA, revolted, saying the then finance minister Ajit Pawar had deprived them of development funds. The noise made little impact.

Fast-forward to Friday. The Shinde government chose the same Ajit Pawar to head the finance and planning ministry amid strong objections from the chief minister's loyalist MLAs.

Political grapevine has it that on Friday, top BJP leadership told Shinde that it was a part of the "deal" with the NCP to allocate finance to Ajit Pawar.

'Part of deal'

Top BJP leadership told Shinde that it was a part of the "deal" with the NCP to allocate finance to Ajit Pawar

Deepak Kesarkar, a Shiv Sena minister, said the finance ministry is with Ajit Pawar, but the final decision will be taken by Shinde. "That's why we are not much concerned," he said.

The Friday reallocation of ministries was done in a manner that not only saw Shiv Sena ministers losing key portfolios but also some BJP ministers who too lost their key positions at the cost of NCP ministers.

NCP's Dhananjay Munde got the agriculture ministry. In the earlier MVA government, the close aide of Ajit Pawar had a low-key portfolio of social justice. NCP minister Chhagan Bhujbal has got the food and civil supply ministry while another NCP minister Dilip Walse Patil will now head the cooperation ministry that will help his party to control and retain its cooperative-related vote bank in western Maharashtra.

Hasan Mushriff, another NCP minister, got medical education ministry while Dharma Baba Atram bagged food and drugs ministry. The only woman NCP minister Aditi Tatkare heads women & child development ministry and NCP's Anil Patil has got rehabilitation and disaster management.

Civic body's new plan to thwart touts in its office

The Kolkata Municipal Corporation started collecting and storing "facial recognition" details of its employees posted in the civic headquarters on SN Banerjee Road. The move is said to be aimed at identifying touts and stopping their entry into the civic body's headquarters. The details will be stored and linked to the ID numbers of the employees. Once the databank is ready, the KMC will install cameras at all gates. All employees have to stop in front of a camera for a few seconds while entering office and the attendance will be marked. While leaving, too, they will have to stand in front of a camera to record the time of exit.

The university will provide `10,000 to research scholars and the amount for teachers, including contractual faculty members, has been fixed at `20,000. The institution has created a research grant from fees it earns by providing consultancy support through its teachers.

HC: Living in age where bread is costlier than blood

SHE should be asked to go to their home instead of living with her daughters, who had instigated her to claim higher maintenance allowance, they stated. They allegedly suppressed the fact that one of them is receiving Rs 20,000 as rent from shops. The court said, "We are living in an age where bread is costlier than blood. Money is losing its purchasing power, days are proving very costly... With no joy in heart, this court observes nowadays, a section of youngsters is failing to look after the aged and ailing parents and their number is swelling. This isn't a happy development."

Noting that law, religion and custom mandate the sons to look after their parents and more particularly, their aged mother, the court said it is not that daughters want any share in the family property. It is they who have been looking after their mother abandoned by their brothers. "This court saw Venkatamma, who is illiterate and has fragile health condition. No law or ruling cites that unwilling parents can be forced to reside with children. Such a contention is incongruous and abhorrent to our culture and tradition, to say the least," the judge said.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

TEN days after announcing a series of sops for the contractual employees, Madhya Pradesh chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan announced on Friday, 42% dearness allowance for state government employees at par with Central government employees.

"In line with the June 23 announcement of bringing state government employees' DA at par with the Central government employees, the state government employees will get 42% DA, which will be at par with the central government employees," the MP CM announced on Friday.

It still remains to be seen whether the state employees eyeing the old pension scheme are going to be satisfied with these fresh announcements or not

However, it remains to be seen whether the state employees eyeing the old pension scheme in the wake of opposition Congress's poll guarantees, are going to be satisfied with these fresh announcements by the CM or not.

Earlier on July 4, the CM had made a slew of announcements for the contractual employees of the state government. The announcements included ending the existing system of annual contract for the contract employees, giving them the benefits of the National Pension Scheme and giving them a 100% amount in salary/honorarium.

He had also announced benefits under the health insurance scheme to the contractual employees, rendering them the benefits of compassionate appointment, gratuity on retirement, 50% reservation for them in recruitment to regular posts in government departments and provision of maternity leave and other leaves like regular employees.

The CM had also announced that the amount of salary deducted for contract employees due to certain reasons (protests) will be refunded and no cases against them would continue.

Separated leopard cubs found at Haryana village

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

TWO leopard cubs from Aravalis were found separated from their mother on Thursday night in the ruins of an old fort in the hills of Kotla village in Nuh district of Haryana.

Children playing in nearby forest area brought the cubs home before the Haryana Wildlife officials on Friday morning rescued the four-day-old cubs and reportedly re-united them with their mother. The children belong to the same village and had accompanied their parents who had gone there for cattle-grazing.

Sources in the Haryana Wildlife Department said children brought the cubs home mistaking them for kittens. "We got the information and today our team visited Kotla village in Nuh district and got the custody of these leopard cubs from the family who had taken their cattle for grazing in the forest area and spotted these cubs which looked different. They thought they were kittens so brought them to their house and played with them," said a forest department official.

These cubs were taken by the officials of the wildlife department to the spot where a raised platform and placed cubs were kept on it so that the mother leopard could hear their wails. After almost six hours of wait, the mother leopard appeared and took away the cubs. Wildlife Department officials showed pug marks to confirm the same but had no photos or videos showing the mother leopard taking them away. "We managed to rehabilitate them in jungle from where they were Brought," an official said.

Environmentalist Vaishali Rana, however, questioned the entire episode. "How do you say mother took them? Pug marks could have been of another leopard which might have just devoured them. The fact that accused took them thinking them cats is unbelievable as the entire village was posting videos with leopard cubs the entire night. The cubs looked traumatised in the videos. Experts should have been called and then they should have been released in the jungle. The Wildlife Department should have taken strict action, given the history of leopard poaching in Aravalis," Rana said.

Chief Conservator of Forests (Wildlife) Haryana MS Malik said he will look into all versions and take necessary action. "As of now, our team in the field claims to have rehabilitated the cubs successfully. We will look into the complaints," he said.

As the news spread fast, people from nearby villages reached the spot to have a look at the cubs. This latest incident adds to the growing list of leopards being regularly spotted in the area. The villagers have been repeatedly told by the not to venture into the forest.

Four lion cubs die within a week inside Etawah Safari Park in UP

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

WITH the death of a three-day-old lion cub of choking on Thursday, total four newly-born lion cubs perished at the Etawah Safari Park within a week, said officials. Lioness Sona gave birth to five cubs last week. While the first birth took place on July 6, three others were born on July 9, and the fifth one on July 10.

According to the Etawah Safari authorities, who kept the death of the lion cubs a closely guarded secret initially, out of five cubs born, three had died by July 10. While two cubs were stillborn and one was very weak and could not survive. The fourth one, which had taken birth along with two others on July 9, died on Thursday and now the vets were monitoring the condition of the only surviving cub.

At around 8.30 am on Thursday, the condition of the fourth cub started deteriorating. There was swelling in its stomach and the cub had difficulty in breathing too. Doctors attending the newborn said that at 11.55 am, the body became still, said the officials while interacting with media persons after the primary probe by the director's office of the park.

Lioness Sona is also under medical observation and has gradually started eating meals. She had not been eating since her delivery. "Breathing issue is stated to be the primary cause of death. A post-mortem examination will reveal further details," said officials.

According to the officials, the experts claimed that the survival of the cubs of the first pregnancy of the lioness, was difficult and if the number of cubs delivered was more, the chances were even bleaker.

Meanwhile, after first three deaths, the two surviving cubs were kept in a wooden enclosure with barrier on all sides and mesh above to allow air to circulate, said the authorities adding that the cubs were moving inside the cot and trying to open eyes. However, the one born on July 10 has survived and is under medical observation. It is being fed artificially. Even the safari authorities had got in touch with experts from Gujarat over the development.

The officials also said that it was rare for a lioness to give birth to cubs over a period of four days. "Lionesses take a maximum of 24 to 30 hours to give birth to cubs. There is no research available about this either. Dehradun Wildlife Institute authorities have also been contacted to study why this happened," said the official. "In this case, lioness Sona gave birth to five cubs in a period of 100 hours which is not common," said an official.

The Etawah safari with a perimeter of 8 km is one of the biggest in Asia. It is being established in an area of 350 hectares with a plan for a lion safari, a deer safari, an antelope safari, a bear safari, and a leopard safari.

OFFERED WAGNER OPTION TO STAY AS SINGLE UNIT: PUTIN

Russian prez said Prigozhin rejected the idea, reponding his troops won't agree to it

MOSCOW

RUSSIAN President Vladimir Putin said he offered the Wagner private military group the option of continuing to serve as a single unit under their same commander after their short-lived rebellion.

In remarks published on Friday in the business daily Kommersant, Putin for the first time described a Kremlin event attended by 35 Wagner commanders, including Prigozhin, on June 29, five days after the rebellion. He said he praised their efforts in Ukraine, deplored their involvement in the mutiny—which he previously denounced as an act of treason—and offered them alternatives for future service.

Vladimir Putin | AP

Putin told Kommersant that one option would see Wagner keep the same commander who goes by the call name "Gray Hair" and has led the private army in Ukraine for 16 months.

"All of them could have gathered in one place and continued to serve," Putin told the newspaper, "And nothing would have changed for them. They would have been led by the same person who had been their real commander all along."

Putin said many Wagner troops nodded in approval at the proposal, but Prigozhin, who was sitting in front and didn't see their reaction, quickly rejected the idea, responding that "the boys won't agree with such a decision."

Putin didn't mention where and in what numbers Wagner could be deployed under his offer, or say what proposal the forces eventually accepted, if any. Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov refused to elaborate on Wagner's future in Friday's conference call with reporters.

Speaking to Kommersant, Putin emphasised that "rank-and-file soldiers of Wagner have fought honourably" in Ukraine, adding that "it's a cause for regret that they were drawn" into the mutiny. The Russian president, who previously denied any links between the government and Wagner, acknowledged after the mutiny that Prigozhin's company has received billions of dollars from the state and noted that investigators would probe whether any of the funds had been stolen, a warning to Prigozhin that he could face financial crimes. AP

Minsk said on Friday that members of the Wagner were acting as military instructors for Belarusian territorial defence forces. "Near Asipovichy, units of territorial defence troops are undergoing training," Belarusian defence ministry said. The forces were learning skills including tactical shooting, moving on the battlefield, engineering and tactical medicine.

Senate passes resolution recognising Arunachal Pradesh as part of India

WASHINGTON

LESS than a month after the historic visit of Prime Minister Narendra Modi to the US, a Congressional Senatorial Committee has passed a resolution recognising Arunachal Pradesh as an integral part of India.

The resolution was introduced by Senators Jeff Merkley, Bill Hagerty, Tim Kaine and Chris Van Hollen on Thursday.

> America's values supporting freedom... must be at the centre of all of our actions and relationships around the world
> Jeff Merkley, US Senator

The resolution reaffirms that the United States recognises the McMahon Line as the international boundary between the People's Republic of China (PRC) and the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh. It pushes back against Chinese claims that large portions of Arunachal Pradesh are PRC territory, which is a part of the PRC's increasingly aggressive and expansionist policies, a media statement said. The resolution will now go to the Senate floor for a full vote.

"America's values supporting freedom and a rules-based order must be at the centre of all of our actions and relationships around the world—especially as the PRC government pushes an alternative vision," said Senator Merkley.

'Committee passage of this resolution affirms that the United States views the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh as part of the Republic of India—not the People's Republic of China—and commits the US to deepen support and assistance to the region, alongside like-minded international partners," he said.

China refers to Arunachal Pradesh as Zangnan. Beijing claims Arunachal Pradesh as South Tibet, a claim firmly rejected by the External Affairs Ministry. PTI

China penetrated every sector, poses spy threat to UK: Panel

LONDON

CHINA'S size and ambition has enabled it to successfully penetrate every sector of the UK's economy, an influential parliamentary panel has said, warning that Beijing's national imperative continues to become a technological and economic superpower on which other countries are reliant.

The House of Commons Intelligence and Security Committee (ISC) said in a report released on Thursday that the intelligence threat posed by China is compounded by a 'whole-of-state' approach with the use of state as well as non-state players for spying.

China's national imperative continues to be the dominance and governance of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) and at a global level, to become a technological and economic superpower on which other countries are reliant, which represents the 'greatest risk' to the UK.

"China almost certainly maintains the largest state intelligence apparatus in the world, dwarfing the UK's Intelligence Community and presenting a challenge for our agencies to cover," the report notes.

"As a result, our agencies' work has to be targeted on those aspects that are most damaging. However, the problem is compounded by China's 'whole-of-state' approach," it said.

"In practice, this means that Chinese state-owned and non-state-owned companies, as well as academic and cultural establishments and ordinary Chinese citizens, are liable to be (willingly or unwillingly) co-opted into espionage and interference operations overseas: much of the impact that China has on national security is overt, through its economic might, its takeovers and mergers, its interaction with Academia and Industry, as opposed to the covert activity carried out by its intelligence officers," it said.

"China's size, ambition and capability have enabled it to successfully penetrate every sector of the UK's economy, and until the Covid-19 pandemic, Chinese money was readily accepted by HMG [His Majesty's Government] with few questions asked," it said.

"China's ruthless targeting is not just economic: it is similarly aggressive in its interference activities, which it operates to advance its own interests, values and narrative at the expense of those of the West," it adds. PTI

8,00,000 to benefit as Joe Biden forgives $39 billion in student loans

WASHINGTON

IN a move that provides relief to students in the US, the Biden administration on Friday announced that it will forgive the loans of more than 8,00,000 borrowers who enrolled in income-driven repayment plans, The Washington Post reported.

According to the Education department, the plan will forgive $39 billion in federal student loans, through "fixes" to the count of monthly payments borrowers have made.

Borrowers are eligible for the forgiveness after 20 or 25 years of payments, depending on their plan, officials said.

The government offers several income-driven repayment (IDR) plans, under which borrowers make a monthly loan payment based on their income over the course of 20 or 25 years, BBC reported.

"For far too long, borrowers fell through the cracks of a broken system that failed to keep accurate track of their progress towards forgiveness," said US Secretary of Education Miguel Cardona. "Today, the Biden-Harris Administration is taking another historic step to right these wrongs and announcing $39 billion in debt relief for another 8,04,000 borrowers."

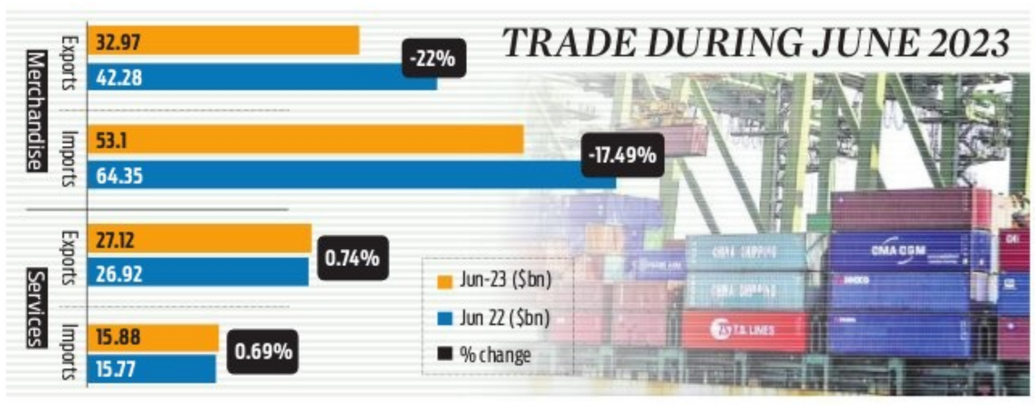
Merchandise exports fall 22% in Jun

Goods trade deficit shrinks to $20 billion as imports decline by 17% during the month

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi



THE country's merchandise exports in June fell drastically by 22% to $32.97 billion on account of global slowdown.

It stood at $42.28 billion in the same month a year ago. Meanwhile, imports dropped by over 17% in June to $53.1 billion with merchandise trade deficit narrowed to $20 billion in June as against $22 billion in May.

Overall, the trade deficit improved by 28.26% during April-June 2023 to $ 22.59 billion from $ 31.49 billion a year-ago period, the data revealed. Merchandise imports also narrowed in the first quarter of FY24 to $57.6 billion from $62.56 billion a year ago. As per Commerce Secretary Sunil Barthwal, the trade sector is completely in the hands of global factors and how the world grows. He said that the World Trade Organisation (WTO) had predicted that there will be a slowdown and that forecast is coming true.

Exports and imports have fallen because of slowdown in major economies like America, North America and the whole of Europe along with several measures taken by the countries to counter inflationary pressure.

As per the data, significant decline in exports was noticed in textiles, petroleum products, chemicals, gems and jewellery, leather and leather products, rice and other cereals among others. However, 9 of the 30 key sectors exhibited positive growth in June 2023 as compared to the same period last year and these include iron ore, electronic goods, oil seeds, cashew, tobacco, fruits & vegetables, coffee, handicrafts and drugs & pharmaceuticals etc.

"Exports of electronic goods rose 45.36% during June 2023 to $2.43 billion as against $1.67 billion in June 2022. During April-June 2023 electronic goods exports were recorded at $6.96 billion as compared to $4.73 billion during April-June 2022, registering a growth of 47.05%," the Commerce Ministry said.

The lower deficit has been driven by a larger sequential fall in imports than exports, says Madhavi Arora, lead economist with Emkay Global Financial Services. However, she added that the deficit remains manageable, and she predicted the CAD/GDP easing to 1.4% in FY24 from 2.0% in FY23.

Arora, however, pointed out that gold imports need to be watched, as they have surged again (highest monthly imports since May'22), ahead of the festive season - though the government's restrictions on certain gold imports may help moderate inward shipments.

Hiring to stay muted in IT cos; focus on upskilling talents

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

IN the first quarter of this fiscal, many IT firms have slashed their net employee additions, and said hiring will depend on the macro environment.

The country's largest IT services company Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) has delayed onboarding of lateral hires amid project delays, and HCLTech and Infosys have deferred salary hikes for employees. Analysts say these indicate that IT firms face a challenging demand environment. Despite this, clients are focusing on digital transformation and emerging technologies like generative AI and all IT majors are heavily investing in this latest technology.

TCS added 523 employees in the June quarter, which is a 96% drop as against 14,136 employees it added in the year-ago period. Wipro's employee count has declined by 8,812 people in the first quarter. HCLTech net headcount reduced by 2,506 people during the quarter.

Speaking at earnings conference, HCLTech CEO and MD C Vijayakumar, said, "We have made a decision to skip compensation review, starting with the management layer, which is E4+, and defer for junior to mid-level people by a quarter, which is E3 and below levels. We will continue to monitor industry trends and as appropriate, take measures as required."

Sachin Alug, CEO of NLB Services, said, 'Current scenario necessitates a prudent approach to recruitment, emphasising quality over quantity. Organisations are likely to prioritise hiring for critical positions and specialised skill sets that align with their growth strategies and the evolving needs of their clients."

The hiring outlook in IT sector for Q2FY24 is expected to be cautious yet strategic. While hiring volumes may remain relatively muted, organisations will focus on optimising existing talent, strategically acquiring specialised skill sets, and embracing emerging technologies, NLB Services said. During the earnings conference, TCS said macroeconomic uncertainties have resulted in greater caution among clients.

Given uncertain economic outlook, TCS sees strong client interest in cost optimisation, vendor consolidation, and integrated operations. Companies are upskilling their existing employees instead of recruiting new ones. Wipro is training its associates in AI. TCS is planning to create a talent pool of 100,000 Generative AI trained associates.

China's BYD proposes to invest $1 billion to make electric vehicles in India

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CHINESE electric carmaker BYD has reportedly proposed a $1 billion investment in India to establish manufacturing facilities for electric vehicles and batteries.

BYD, which competes with Tesla in the global electric car market, already has a presence in India, where it sells the Atto 3 electric SUV and the e6 electric sedan.

As per news agencies reports, BYD and Hyderabad-based Megha Engineering and Infrastructures have submitted a proposal to Indian regulators to form an EV joint venture. Currently, BYD has a facility in Tamil Nadu. Megha Engineering and Infrastructures is involved in construction of roads, bridges, and power plants.

The longer-term plan is to build a full line-up of BYD-brand EVs in India, from hatchbacks to luxury models. If the India investment sails through, it would give BYD a presence in all major global car markets with the exception of the United States. BYD's increased interest in the Indian market comes as Elon Musk's Tesla is again gearing up to enter the local market. After Prime Minister Narendra Modi's recent visit to the USA, Tesla officials have resumed its talks with the Indian government.

According to the report, BYD plans to scale up to production of 100,000 electric vehicles annually in India over a few years.

However, the company would likely begin by shipping vehicles in parts for assembly in the country as it works to build up a supply chain.

BYD is the second Chinese four-wheeler company which has operations in India, the first being SAIC-owned MG Motors. In May this year, MG Motor had announced it is planning to sell a majority stake in its India operation to a local partner (or partners) in the next 2 to 4 years, according to the company's strategic 5-year business roadmap. This move by the carmaker had come as more Chinese firms are struggling to obtain foreign direct investment (FDI) clearance from the Government of India for their future endeavours.

HDFC Bank shares may face pressure in short term post merger with HDFC

SACHIN KUMAR @ Mumbai

THE shares of HDFC Bank are expected to face some pressure in short term due to its merger with housing finance giant HDFC, but the medium and long-term prospects of the private lender are 'extremely bright'.

The bank will need to increase Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR) and Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR) by ₹70,000 crore and meet priority sector lending requirements, which may put pressure on its profitability in short term. However, shareholders of the new HDFC Bank will benefit from strong growth the lender from high credit and deposit growth, increased geographic reach and cross-selling opportunity, say analysts.

"The long-term prospects of new HDFC Bank are extremely bright and that warrants share prices to move further, but there are few very short term concerns. The first one is the reduction of holdings by mutual funds in the bank. Currently the maximum limit of investment for a mutual fund is 10 percent. Many funds have recently lowered their holding in HDFC Bank as their investments in the new entity moved beyond 10 percent limit," V K Vijayakumar, Chief Investment Strategist at Geojit Financial Services told TNIE. "Mortgage lender HDFC was not subjected to reserve requirement set by the RBI. After the merger the new entity will have to increase their CRR and SLR by Rs70,000 crore which will impact bank's profitability. All these factors will act as a drag in the short run," he said.

HDFC Bank allocates 311 crore new shares

HDFC Bank on Friday allocated over 311 crore new shares of the bank to shareholders of merged entity HDFC Ltd. The share allocation was done as per the swap ratio announced as part of the composite scheme of amalgamation. JP Morgan has assigned an 'overweight' rating on the stock

In the medium and long term, the bank will benefit from India's rapid economic growth by meeting country's high demand for credit and financial services. HDFC was merged with its subsidiary HDFC Bank on July 1 after which shares of the mortgage lender were delisted from exchanges from July 12. HDFC Bank on Friday allocated over 311 crore new shares of the bank to shareholders of merged entity HDFC Ltd. The share allocation was done as per the swap ratio announced as part of the composite scheme of amalgamation. As per the scheme, every HDFC shareholder has got 42 shares of HDFC Bank for every 25 shares they hold. Terming the merger as positive from a medium-term perspective, global financial services firm JP Morgan has assigned an 'overweight' rating on the stock. "Following a period of restriction, we are moving to an 'overweight' rating and a March 2024 target price of ₹2,000 from a 'not rated' designation. We believe the merger with parent HDFC is positive from a medium-term perspective, given opportunity for liability refinancing, cross-sell, addition of book duration and lower share of unsecured loans," said Saurabh Kumar of JPMorgan in a report.

BOJ UNVEILS TIMETABLE OF UEDA'S FLAGSHIP REVIEW

Japan's central bank on Friday announced details of Governor Kazuo Ueda's flagship review of its past unconventional monetary easing steps. The Bank of Japan (BOJ) has a plan to conduct the first workshop in December as part of the review. The central bank said in the statement that BOJ's December workshop will discuss themes such as monetary policy, financial system and market developments. BOJ will conduct further research and analyses after taking into account feedback from the first workshop. The country's apex bank will hold its second workshop around May next year, it said. BOJ will also exchange views with overseas academics as part of the long-term review. Ueda announced the plan to conduct a review of the effects and side-effects of various unconventional monetary easing steps taken by the BOJ during its 25-year battle with deflation at his debut policy meeting in April.

CHINA

EXPORTS FALL MOST IN THREE YEARS

Exports of China declined at their fastest pace in June since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic three years ago, as an ailing global economy puts pressure on Chinese policymakers for fresh stimulus measures. Analysts are now downgrading their projections for the economy for the rest of the year as post-COVID recovery has slowed after a brisk pickup in the first quarter. According to China's Customs Bureau data released on Thursday, outbound shipments from the world's second-largest economy declined a worse-than-expected 12.4% year-on-year in June. Outbound shipments witnessed a drop of 7.5% in May. The country's imports declined 6.8%, steeper than an expected 4.0% and the previous month's 4.5% fall.

ECONOMY GROWS MORE THAN EXPECTED IN Q2

Singapore's economy grew more than expected in the second quarter, data showed on Friday. However, resilience in construction activity and the service industry helped offset a sharp decline in manufacturing. According to the advance estimates from Ministry of Trade and Industry, the country's gross domestic product (GDP) grew at an annualised 0.7% in the three months to June 30. The economy was expected to rise 0.6%, and higher than the 0.4% growth seen in the first quarter. The city-state is dodging a technical recession after GDP shrank 0.4% quarter-on-quarter in the first three months of 2023. Local construction activity was one of the key supports to the economy, which grew 6.6%, while demand for retail trade, IT services, and accommodation and food services also helped buoy economic growth. The country's key manufacturing and export sector was hit by slowing demand. The sector shrank 7.5% year-on-year in the second quarter.

Equity market witnesses strong rally led by heavy buying in IT stocks

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

LED by heavy buying in the IT pack, domestic equity market witnessed a strong rally on Friday with the BSE Sensex settling above 66,000 and the NSE Nifty closing above 19,500 for first time on Friday.

The 30share index scaled a fresh high 66,160 on Friday and closed the session with a gain of 502 points at 66,061. The broader Nifty50 hit a new high at 19,595, and finished 151 points higher at 19,565.

According to market analysts, the bullish momentum is expected to continue as central banks worldwide are expected to hit the pause button on interest rate hikes.

"We believe the broad market rally is on the back of Interest rate stability...This has triggered asset allocation globally with flows reversing from developed markets to developing markets. So far, we have seen FII investing close to ₹1.28 lakh crore CYTD," said Ritesh Bhagwati, Vice President, Rockstud Capital.

Prashanth Tapse, Senior VP (Research), Mehta Equities said the next target for Nifty is to hit the 20,000 milestones. "With the continued positive catalysts such as softer inflation readings in the US and expectations of a pause in rate hikes by the Fed, bulls are likely to remain in control. Looking ahead, there is room for further upside, and we anticipate the Nifty to reach fresh all-time highs around the 20000 mark in the near term," said Tapse.

Among Sensex 30 shares, Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) soared 5% while Tech Mahindra and Infosys surged 4.5% each.

HCL Technologies and Wipro were up about 3% each. IT stocks are back in demand as experts believe the sector's prospects have started to look bright post Q1FY24 results with order book size continue to grow.

TCS and Infosys shares had surged about 2.5% each on Thursday as well. In just two days, the two big IT firms' combined market capitalization grew by over ₹1.30 lakh crore.

Senco lists at 36% premium, Utkarsh IPO bought 102 times

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

SHARES of Senco Gold on Friday made a solid debut at the stock exchanges, listing at a 35.96% premium at ₹431 apiece on the BSE.

The strong opening was on the expected line as the IPO saw strong interest from investors and the shares were commanding a near 40% premium in the grey market. Post the listing, the stock witnessed profit booking and by the end of the day, was down by 6% to close at ₹405. The market cap of the Kolkata-based jeweller stood at ₹3,145 crore, as per BSE. "We are not recommending any fresh buying at this level. However, existing investors can hold the shares for the long term with a stop loss at ₹387, as the company has good growth prospects", said Anubhuti Mishra, Equity Research Analyst at Swastika Investmart. Senco's ₹405 crore initial public offer was subscribed 77 times. Most analysts recommended subscribing to the issue owing to its attractive valuation and the company being well-positioned to benefit from the growing demand for gold jewellery in India. Meanwhile, the IPO of Utkarsh Small Finance Bank was subscribed by 102 times on the final day of the issue, becoming the second IPO, after ideaForge Technology, in recent times to breach the 100x subscription mark.

7,338 prosecutions withdrawn under Companies Act

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi

IN a bid to promote ease of doing business and decriminalisation of compoundable offences under the Companies Act, 2013, the central government on Friday approved withdrawal of 7,338 prosecutions under its Special Arrears Clearance Drive-II, which have remained pending before various courts.

"This would be a significant decrease of 21.86% in the pending prosecutions being pursued by the central government. The government's "Action Plan for Special Arrears Clearance Drives" for reducing the number of pending litigations had previously resulted in withdrawal of 14,247 prosecutions during the Special Drive-I in the year 2017," the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) said in a statement.

MCA had constituted a panel to undertake a thorough review of pending litigations. Long pending prosecutions for compoundable offences have been identified for withdrawal. "Prosecutions related to serious non-compoundable offences like cheating, fraud, acceptance of deposits, pending charges, etc. have not been considered for withdrawal. This step will unclog the courts and foster growth of corporate sector, while maintaining a healthy corporate governance framework," the government said. The cases being withdrawn under Special Drive-II are corollary to the amendment brought out by the government vide the Companies (Amendment) Act, 2020, for decriminalisation of offences under Companies Act, 2013 to facilitate smooth functioning of businesses as well as minimise lengthy litigations before courts.

Adani gets nod for Dharavi redevelopment

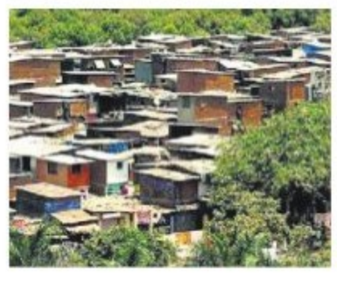
ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

DESPITE controversy around handing the Dharavi slum redevelopment project to the Adani Group, the Maharashtra government has given its final go-ahead to the group to start the redevelopment work.

The Dharavi slum redevelopment project is spread across 600 acres, and will cost about ₹5,000 crore. Nearly 9 lakh people stay in Dharavi slums of Mumbai, an Adani Group executive told this newspaper.

Adani Properties had won the bid for redeveloping the slum last November after the state government had invited expression of interest (EoI) in October 2022.

As many as eight companies had shown interest but only three had submitted bids for the project.



The final approval from the Maharashtra government came in the form of a government resolution (GR) dated July 13, 2023.

The GR has been issued by the Housing Department of the state government.

The Dharavi Redevelopment Project was first tried in 2008, and then again in 2016, but failed to get many takers. In 2019, the state government again invited expression of interest, but only two companies showed interest, forcing the government to scarp the project.

The construction project will be undertaken through a special purpose vehicle jointly with Adani Group and the state government.

The Adani group company will have 80% stake in the special purpose vehicle and the rest with the state government. Under the project, free houses will be built with basic amenities such as water and power supply, sewage disposal, and piped gas.

The government will offer several concessions to the project including GST waiver and others.

LSG name Langer as new head coach

Lucknow Super Giants have appointed former Australian opener Justin Langer as their head coach replacing Andy Flower, the IPL franchise announced on Friday. "Lucknow Super Giants have appointed former Australian cricket team coach and batter Justin Langer as their team head coach," the franchise said in a statement

Serb to face Alcaraz in summit clash, one match away from men's record of eight crowns at SW19

DJOKOVIC IN NINTH WIMBLEDON FINAL

AFP @ London

NOVAK Djokovic powered into his ninth Wimbledon final as the fiery defending champion feuded with the umpire and spectators before beating Jannik Sinner to reach a record 35th Grand Slam singles title match on Friday.

Djokovic was in combative mood during a 6-3, 6-4, 7-6 (4) semifinal victory that moved him closer to a record-equalling eighth Wimbledon title. "Semi-finals are always going to be very intense. Maybe the scoreline doesn't give the reality of what happened on court. It was super close," Djokovic said.

On his row with umpire Richard Haigh, who stripped him of a point after he made a loud yell in the middle of a rally, Djokovic said: "The hindrance could have changed the course of the match. I felt nervous after that call, but I managed to regroup.

"It's probably the first time it's happened to me, I don't normally have extended grunts. Maybe it was an echo in the roof." The Serb will tie Roger Federer's eight Wimbledon crowns if he wins a fifth consecutive title on the All England Club grass.

Novak Djokovic waves to the corwd after beating Jannik Sinner on Friday | AFP

Djokovic's latest milestone — his record 35th Grand Slam final — took him past American legend Chris Evert, but he has an even more significant feat in his sights on Sunday. With 23 Grand Slam singles titles to his name, the World No 2 is aiming to equal Margaret Court's all-time record of 24.

Djokovic has already won this season's Australian Open and French Open as he chases an astonishing clean-sweep of all four Grand Slam events in a single year, with the US Open to come in August. Italian eighth seed Sinner, 21, came close to a shock victory over Djokovic in the Wimbledon quarterfinals last year before the Serb came from two sets down to win. But here it was a different story.

After breaking in the third game of the second set, Djokovic found himself in trouble with Haigh. The British official took a point from Djokovic in the fourth game, ruling he made a distracting noise after his shot and just before Sinner was about to hit the ball. Haigh irked Djokovic again moments later, warning him for taking too long to serve as the Serb shook his head in disbelief. But Djokovic recovered his equilibrium to win.

Alcaraz bests Medvedev

In a largely one-sided second men's semifinal, Carlos Alcaraz beat Daniil Medvedev 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 to advance to his second Major final The World No. 1, largely considered to be the next heir of men's tennis, has the chance to win his second Major.

ROYAL BATTLE

The favourite has been cast aside while the sentimental favourite fell in the penultimate hurdle. Will Ons Jabeur create history for a region befert of Slam titles or can Marketa Vondrousova add to Czech royalty. A look at the women's final...

Marketa Vondrousova	Name	Ons Jabeur
24	Age	28
42	Ranking	6
1	Career	4
0	Slams	0
3	H2H	3

SCINTILLATING RUN

Vondrousova's run has been nothing short of phenomenal. It still doesn't make an awful lot of sense. At some level, even she didn't expect this considering her husband stayed home to look after the cat (he's coming to watch the final). She has already taken out four seeds in the first six matches and could now be the third Czech after Petra Kvitova and Jana Novotna to win the famous title. And WTA Tour, in their preview package, makes the point that her record on grass is still less than ideal (10-11)

JABEUR ON CUSP OF HISTORY

While women's tennis has witnessed a lot of churn over the last 2-3 years, the African has quietly emerged as a familiar figure. One of the most consistent players on the circuit (this is her third final in five Majors), could this be her history-making moment? By her account itself, she reckons she has learned a lot over the last 12 months or so (beating Aryna Sabalenka in the semifinals is a case in point). If she does, she will not only be a popular first-time winner but will mark a landmark for the Arab

WIMBLEDON TRIVIA

Martina Navratilova has won nine Wimbledon trophies, more than any other male or female player.

Toor, Parul win gold, Shaili silver

INDRANEEL DAS @ Chennai

THERE is something about Tajinder Pal Singh Toor. The shot-putter always has great throws, including national records, during domestic competitions. But somehow he manages to not throw the distance in competitions abroad. The Asian Athletics Championships in Bangkok is another example. However, he managed to win gold. India's gold on Friday was Parul Chaudhury in the 3000m SC. India now have five gold, including the three they won on Thursday.

Once again the heartening part was to see another young star doing well. Long-jumper Shaili Singh won silver at her first senior Asian meet.

Toor defended his title Asian title on Friday but his mark was way off his personal best of 21.77m achieved less than a month ago. He managed to throw the iron ball to 20.23m in his second attempt after which he did not take part in the competition.

"I injured myself just after we reached Bangkok," said Toor, explaining the reason for not being able to throw well and complete his series. "I have strained my muscle in the groin region and I did not want to aggravate. That's why I did not take part." This is not the first time Toor has had groin injury issues. He missed the World Championships and the Commonwealth Games because of the same injury.

Toor, however, felt this should not hamper his participation at the Worlds next month. "I should be fine in eight-ten days," he said during a zoom meet organized by the Athletics Federation of India (AFI). "I think this should not be a worry and definitely should not be a problem for the Asian Games in September-October." Saberi Mehdi (19.98m) of Iran won silver followed by Ivan Ivanov (19.87m) of Kazakhstan.

Tajinder Pal Singh

Steeple-chaser Chaudhury added a second gold. She had been quite consistent over the last few months and she has said that her training with middle and long distance coach Scott Simmons had helped her improve. The training in the US also helped her. "Since working with Simons, I have managed to improve my timing and that shows that what we are working on is giving good results," she said. "I had improved my personal best a couple of months ago." She has been training at Colorado Springs in the US for about three months and that helped her improve her timing in both pet 3000m steeplechase (9:29.51s) and 5000m (15:10.35s).

In Bangkok even though timing was not her best, she said she ran according to the field she had. "My target was gold and I ran according to the field today and that's why the timing was this," she said. Shaili, who had a severe bout of Covid for the second time earlier this year, is still struggling for full fitness after early jumps. Even on Friday, she had first two good jumps and struggled. Even Shaili admitted that after her illness she and her coach are working on her fitness but at the same time she was elated to win a medal on debut. "Really happy to have won the first Asian championships medal," she said. Her coach Robert Bobby George told this daily from Bangkok that she is improving and a bit of more work needs to be done. Japan's Sumire Hata won gold with a monstrous 6.97m jump (sixth attempt).

"I am happy with her performance and her mark 6.54m (first attempt) was good," he said. "I was expecting some 6.70m but this is not bad. She was also confident of achieving that mark. We are working on her rhythm after the first two jumps and over a period of time we will be able to take care of that. By Asian Games she will be much better."

On Shaili going to the World Championships on Road to Budapest ranking, Robert said they will assess the situation and after discussing with AFI they will decide. "She is young and she can compete later also. There is no hurry. We will focus on the Asian Games," he said.

BCCI name squads for Asian Games

From being scared to owning the field, the Jaiswal story

Yashasvi Jaiswal scored 171 on debut | AFP

Brief scores (at time of going to print): WI 1st Innings: 150 all out in 64.3 ovs vs India 1st Innings: 421/5 decl. in 152.2 ovs (Jaiswal 171, Sharma 103).

GOMESH S @ Chennai

AS Yashasvi Jaiswal walked back to the dressing room with 171 runs next to his name on Day Two of the first Test in Dominica on Friday, the disappointment on his face was visible. He became only the 17th Indian man to score a ton on debut and only the third from the country to register a 150-plus score on debut. And yet, he seemed to be disappointed that he missed out on a double hundred. After all, he had scored three of them in the last 12 months in domestic red-ball cricket.

Halfway across the world in Mumbai, Jwala Singh, his childhood coach, was beaming with pride. In fact, Singh too was hoping that his ward would make it a double having messaged Yashasvi after his hundred to bat till the end of play on Friday. The left-hander might have missed on the 200, but he, his family and Singh, also his legal guardian, are immensely proud of the journey he has been through.

Watching Jaiswal play, Singh is so proud that he feels he has achieved a dream of his own. As someone who came to Mumbai from a small town (Gorakhpur) himself with the dream of playing cricket, Singh knows what it is to struggle for opportunities, to be dared by people around, to be discouraged. When he met Jaiswal in 2013, he knew exactly what he needed to do. "When people from small towns come to big cities carrying their dreams, many people will try to stop them. They will tell them you cannot do it. It is very difficult. No one has ever done this before. When I came to Mumbai, my parents went through many difficulties to send me here. Unfortunately, even after playing well it didn't happen, I got injured. So for me, it was like I have to do something in this field. When I saw Yashasvi, he had a similar fire," Singh recalls.

When Singh met Jaiswal, he was a scared kid who had travelled to the city of dreams from Bhadohi, Uttar Pradesh. He was staying in a tent, struggling mentally, physically and financially. People around him had misguided him and scared him that he couldn't play because he did not have proper documents so Jaiswal did not play for a few months. That is when Singh came into the picture, took over as legal guardian and ensured that he got to play. "For a 12-year-old kid who didn't have documents, a house to sleep, proper food on table, practice facility and no opportunities to play, India cap was not even in the picture. I told him we will work hard for ten years without having high hopes, he did everything I asked for. I did all the planning and execution was his part," says the coach.

Singh used to tell Jaiswal motivational stories all the time. Stories of players who succeeded and those who didn't. He never told him 'best of luck' even. Singh wanted Jaiswal to not believe in luck and create his own destiny and he has. A decade since Singh took Jaiswal under his wing, the youngster is not a scared kid searching for an opportunity anymore. He is an India cricketer who has smashed a Test century on debut and is living his and his coach's dream. What's more, this is just the beginning.

> Even when he got selected for India U19 when his family called and I told them it has just started and there is still a long way to go. And I am very happy that he achieved it

UTT: Manav Thakkar stars for U Mumba

AGENCIES @ Pune

MANAV Thakkar inspired U Mumba to a splendid 10-5 win over Bengaluru Smashers in the Ultimate Table Tennis here on Friday.

The 23-year-old teamed up with USA's Lily Zhang to turn the tables on Benglauru Smashers in their mixed doubles contest, beating the pair of Manika Batra and Kirill Gerassimenko 11-10, 10-11, 11-6, as U Mumba came from behind to take the lead.

Later on, Thakkar produced a one-sided contest against Sanil Shetty in a men's singles match, showcasing his class.

At the start, Bengaluru Smashers captain and world no 58 Gerassimenko provided his team a strong start when he beat world No 18 Aruna Quadri from Nigeria 11-3 in the first game.

Quadri fought back well in the second game of the men's singles contest, winning by 11-9 to level terms with Gerassimenko.

The Kazakhstan player, however, managed to hold on to his lead and eventually win the third game and give Bengaluru a 2-1 lead after the first match. Gerassimenko defeated Quadri 11-3, 9-11, 11-8.

Ad-hoc panel banks on WFI rules to exempt wrestlers from Asiad trials

FIROZ MIRZA @ Chennai

FACING ire for not coming up with the criteria despite announcing dates of the Asian Games selection trials, the Indian Olympic Association (IOA)-appointed ad-hoc panel will meet at the IOA Bhawan, New Delhi on Saturday.

While the criteria will be a point of discussion, the emphasis will be on rules and regulations chalked out by the Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) to select wrestlers for participation in the national coaching camp/international competition.

The WFI regulation says, "The selection trials in all weight categories are mandatory, however, the selection committee will have the discretion to select the iconic players like medallists of Olympics/World Championships without trial provided recommendation by chief coach/foreign expert." Given the rule, the ad-hoc panel, as was reported by this daily, may discuss to exempt a few wrestlers from the trials on the basis of their podium finish in the Olympics and World Championships in the past. It can benefit a few wrestlers including Ravi Dahiya, Bajrang Punia and Vinesh Phogat with the last two being the face of protest against the sidelined WFI chief Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh. The rule gains significance as the panel doesn't want to hold two trials as was proposed by it in the past.

"Two-stage trials are out of question as we have to send final entries by July 23. But there is a WFI rule which allows the selection committee to select iconic players without trial," a source in the know of things told this daily.

The meeting will be attended by the two members Bhupender Singh Bajwa and Suma Shirur apart from two technical experts Gian Singh and Ashok Garg. The rule, however, clearly says chief coach's recommendation is important and this puts the ball in the coaches' court. "The chief coaches from all three styles — men's freestyle and Greco-Roman and women's wrestling — are expected to be called to seek their opinion for the purpose," added the source. But there is a strong possibility that these coaches will not recommend exemption for any wrestlers.

"The chief coaches had met Bajwa and expressed their displeasure over the panel's proposal benefitting the protesting wrestlers. So it's highly unlikely that they will recommend their names. Besides, these wrestlers had requested the Sports Authority of India (SAI) to remove a few of these coaches from their post," one of the former national coaches said.

Although the criteria will be discussed, but it is not certain whether the same would be released as the panel is treading carefully to avoid controversy.

Meanwhile, general secretary of the Punjab Wrestling Association, RS Kundu, has written to Bajwa to ensure the selection trials are conducted. The letter said that Punjab wrestler Jaskaran Singh competes in 65kg freestyle and he should be given a chance to book his place in Asian Games team. He also cited news reports which say the panel is planning to give quota to a few wrestlers in selected weight categories including 65kg.

MAKING SENSE OF TORRENTIAL DOWNPOUR IN NORTHWEST INDIA

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @ New Delhi

WHEN visuals of vehicles stuck in waist-deep water in Ladakh started appearing on social media platforms on July 9, it caught many by surprise as the region is otherwise a cold desert. Just two days of heavy rainfall followed by unseasonal snowfall had brought Ladakh to its knees.

According to the regional meteorological centre (RMC), Ladakh's annual rainfall is around 100 mm, and normal rainfall during the Southwest monsoon is 39.5 mm. But the torrential downpour on July 8-9 yielded close to half of the annual rainfall and much more than the total Southwest monsoon precipitation. Ladakh actually received a whopping 10,000% rain over normal for two consecutive days.

"In two days, there was 45 mm rainfall, which was way more than the total monsoon rainfall of the region," said Dr Sonam Lotus, a scientist at RMC Ladakh. The RMC had issued a red alert on July 7, which helped minimise the loss. However, the downpour washed away highways and centuries-old traditional houses besides damaging public and private properties.

As for northwest India, which includes Himachal Pradesh, Punjab, Uttarakhand, Haryana and Delhi, torrential rains killed at least 88 people in the past week. Record downpours in different states destroyed roads, bridges, temples, hotels, private properties, washed away vehicles and inundated cities and towns. The National Highway 44 connecting Jammu to Srinagar, described as an all-weather road, too, collapsed.

Too much in too little time

Not just Ladakh, a city like Chandigarh received over half (573 mm) of its annual rainfall (1,059.3 mm) in just 72 hours this season. Himachal Pradesh received 100 mm of rainfall in just two days - 75% of its total rainfall for this month was between July 5 and July 10. In the same period, Haryana received 61% and Punjab 55% of July's rainfall.

The catchment areas of Yamuna received heavy rainfall in past eight days, which caused the river to swell and in turn unleash floods in Uttarakhand, western Uttar Pradesh and low-lying areas of Delhi.

Uttarakhand received 183 mm of rainfall in the past eight days, which is 43% of the total rain of July. Similarly, Western UP received 50% of monthly rain in eight days. Low-lying areas of Delhi-NCR got flooded for the first time in the last four decades. Scientists attribute the current torrential downpours to an interplay of western disturbances and the monsoon. "Interaction of western disturbances, cyclonic circulation and monsoon trough led to catastrophic floods over Northwest India," said Dr Ashim Mitra, a scientist at IMD.

Besides, there is an anti-cyclone formation over the Tibet Plateau, which is closely related to the burst of the monsoon system of India, he said. This anti-cyclone has now shifted to the East, so the Northeast could be in for heavy rainfall now.

Significantly, while a part of these states received over 1,000% more rainfall than normal, other corners of same states either had rain deficit or no rain. Madhavan Rajeevan, former Secretary at Ministry of Earth Sciences, said it is an example of climate change's impact on the Indian monsoon. "It rains a few hours, but when it does, it rains heavily. Our forewarning systems and mitigation should further improve. This can happen anywhere," said Rajeevan.

Torrential downpours in the Northwest in the last few days took India's overall rainfall from deficit to surplus. While on June 30 the countrywide rainfall deficit was 10%, the July 13 data shows 1% surplus. However, the country's overall rainfall is uneven. India's two major regions, the East and Southern Peninsula, still have rainfall deficits. In fact, around 40% of meteorological subdivisions have deficit rainfall. The current floods in Himachal Pradesh reminded experts of the 2013 Uttarakhand floods, which had similar synoptic conditions. The similarities include an active monsoon with strong easterly winds in the lower layer, which was laden with moisture; an eastward moving mid-latitude trough in the atmosphere's upper layer; and a deep convection triggered by orographic uplift combined with the steep terrain of the Himalayas, said Rajeevan.

Elsewhere in the world

The planet is dangerously warming, causing mayhem across continents. Like India, there were torrential downpours in Pakistan, killing at least 87 people in the past fortnight. In the US, too, an extreme spell of rainfall caused flashfloods in the northeast region, killing one person, flooding rivers and washing away roads.

FRIGHTENING COST OF CLIMATE CHANGE INDIA HAS TO PAY

SUDARSAN MAHARANA @ Bhubaneswar

AS India comes to terms with the devastation of the floods and landslides triggered by record-shattering precipitation, it is time to count the losses.

Though, the unprecedented fury of extreme weather events is not new. It is not going to be the last one either.

The immense cost climate change has begun to extract can only be gauged but not estimated in real terms given its far-reaching socio-economic impact. Preliminary estimates put the damage in Himachal Pradesh due to landslides and falshfloods around ₹3,000 to ₹4,000 crore. Can the economic cost of extreme weather events truly be quantified?

A study carried out by the Delhi-based National Institute of Disaster Management suggests the economic damages inflicted on due to floods and heavy rains in the last 65 years—between 1953 and 2018—is approximately ₹4 lakh crore.

According to the State of the Climate in Asia 2021 report, published by the World Meteorological Organization (WMO), floods in 2021 inflicted economic losses to the tune of $3.2 billion, which is approximately ₹26,268 crore on India, second only to China, among Asian nations.

Last year's floods that impacted 88 lakh in Assam reportedly left a trail of damage estimated at about ₹10,000 crore in the North Eastern state, while the Post Disaster Needs Assessment conducted by United Nations in Kerala puts the figure at ₹31,000 crore after the devastating floods in 2018. A recent report of the Reserve Bank of India, which assessed the implication of climate change on the macroeconomic scenario, estimated the country lost a staggering $69 billion due to climate related events in 2019 alone.

If compared with the loss of $79.5 billion suffered during 1998-2017 period, it is a sharp jump and implies the cost extracted by global warming. In the 2019 monsoon season alone, the intense rainfall impacted more than 12 million people and led to a loss of $10 billion, stated the report by the central bank.

"Climate change manifested through rising temperature and changing patterns of monsoon rainfall in India could cost the economy 2.8% of its GDP and depress the living standards of nearly half of its population by 2050. India could lose anywhere around 3% to 10% of its GDP annually by 2100 due to climate change in the absence of adequate mitigation policies," the paper said citing research calculations. The UN Office for Disaster Risk Reduction, in collaboration with Belgium-based Centre for Research on the Epidemiology of Disasters (CRED) and its Emergency Events Database, computed the human cost of disasters for 2000-2019 and found Asia suffered the bulk of the disasters during the period.

Out of the 7,348 disaster events mapped across continents, at least 3,068 were reported in Asia.

Jannik Sinner

SERVING TO WIN

As the 2023 rendition of the oldest Grand Slam, Wimbledon, inches towards its end, city's coaches and players lend their opinion on who might take the crown this year

TUNIR BISWAS

GRASS is always greener on the other side, except when you're playing at Wimbledon. Presently, the 2023 rendition of the major has come to its final stage with the men's semi-finals kicking in on July 14. Reigning champion Novak Djokovic (36) played eighth seed Jannik Sinner (21) while the youngest world number 1 ever, Carlos Alcaraz Garfia (20), took his chances against third seed Daniil Medvedev (27).

"At the press conference after the quarter finals, Djokovic specifically ended with saying something along the lines of 'I still have it (the way to win). They (the younger players) don't have it yet'. In his gut, he still believes the 'kids' are not ready to take over just yet. So from a mentality perspective, Djokovic is still very clear and firm about his game. It will be very tough to take him down," says Deeraj Shetty, city-based wealth manager and former tennis player.

Among the younger players, professional tennis player Sharmada Balu feels Alcaraz is the most likely winner. "I'm a fan of Alcaraz. He comprises the best of Federer, Nadal and Djokovic, something we have never seen," says Balu.

Agreeing with Balu is Zeeshan Ali, tennis coach and former player who had won the gold medal for India at at the 1994 Asian Games, who shares, "Alcaraz is definitely the future of tennis. He is fun to watch. He sends out good vibes on court and people like that. He, Medvedev and Sinner have all got the game to beat Djokovic, but to do that in a Slam is going to be tough. His experience of playing Grand Slam semis or finals separates Djokovic from the rest. They have to play incredibly and Djokovic needs to have a bad day for them to win."

On the Indian front, Rohan Bopanna (43) exited the tournament after losing the men's doubles semifinal on July 13. Arjun Gautham, mental skills coach for athletes and former tennis player, says Bopanna's influence in the circuit is immense. "With how Rohan's knee is currently, to even reach Wimbledon semis is itself an admirable feat. The community of doubles in tennis in India has altered a lot. After Leander Paes and Mahesh Bhupathi, Rohan has actually been able to crack it over. The younger players all now believe in reaching Slam semis or finals and Rohan is greatly responsible for that change," he concludes.

WHEN Praveen Manker, founder-trustee of the Pratibimb Charitable Trust, an NPO that offers self-improvement courses, attended a seven-day spiritual discourse by Swami Chinmayananda in the late '80s, it was purely for 'fun'. As a trained pharmacist, spirituality didn't appeal to his sense of logic. But to his surprise, Manker came out of the discourse as a changed man. "I was taken aback when I heard the talk by the Swami, he was talking pure science, exploring scientific concepts by Einstein, Newton, among others with the backdrop of the Bhagavad Gita and the Upanishads," says the Mumbaikar, who was in Bengaluru on Friday for the ongoing Life & Breath Camp, at Bowring Institute.

At the camp, participants are learning a course, originally developed over a thousand years ago, that can improve their well-being through meditation and breathing exercises. "The course was originally developed at Nalanda University by Guru Padmasambhava. He later fled to Tibet, having anticipated the university's destruction. The course was later discovered by a Britisher in Tibet, who then took it to the US. A gentleman from Mumbai brought it to India in the 1970s, and I learnt it from one of the many offshoots of the original organisations," the 67-year-old explains.

Manker believes the ideal audience for the course are those between the ages of 10 and 18. "Today, the stress levels of children are very high. They are struggling with mental health issues. This course can help youngsters live a better life," he adds.

CE FEATURES

Directed by Yogaraj Bhat and made under the production of Rockline Venkatesh banner the film that has piqued curiosity with its intriguing title, has now got its first look poster. Drawing inspiration from the central characters of the Panchatantra, Karataka and Damanaka, the film is billed as an action-packed entertainer.

"Once upon a time, two cunning foxes named Karataka and Damanaka wreaked havoc upon the forest and the entire country. Today, these crafty foxes have taken on human form. The warning accompanying the poster has only served to heighten the audience's intrigue," shared Director Yogaraj Bhat, shedding light on the film's concept and providing insights into its title.

Extensive filming has already taken place in various locations, including the outskirts of Bangalore, Kolar, Gauribidanur, and North Karnataka. Currently, in the final phase of shooting, the film features Rockline Venkatesh in the role of a police officer, alongside Priya Anand and Nishvika Naidu as the female leads. THE FUN BEHIND THE RIOTOUS HOSTEL HUDUGARU...

Composer Ajaneesh Loknath and cinematographer Arvind Kashyap discuss the interesting challenges faced while pulling off Nithin Kirishnamurthy's youthful entertainer

A SHARADHAA

GOING by the rushes of Hostel Hudugaru Bekagiddare, directed by Nithin Krishnamurthy, is set for a fun riotous ride. Cinematographer Arvind Kashyap and composer Ajaneesh Lokanath faced interesting challenges while pulling off this youthful entertainer. We spoke to the top-tier technicians who are not just the toast of Kannada cinema, but Indian cinema too.

The film had only five percent space for musical score: Ajaneesh Loknath

Ajaneesh Loknath, known for his diverse musical endeavours, shares his experience working on such a chaotic film that features a multitude of artists. Despite the expectation of numerous songs in a youthful film, Hostel Hudugaru Bekagiddare surprisingly includes only two songs. "Hostel Hudugaru... is mostly a conversation-based film among the hostel boys. I had to strategically place the music and approach it from a different perspective. The film, entirely relying on dialogue, had only five percent space for musical score, aside from the songs," says Ajaneesh, who has created a unique blend of electronic dance music (EDM) with elements of trap and other contemporary styles. "Nithin's approach to the film was refreshing and innovative, making it a one-of-a-kind experience in Indian cinema, and that helped me enhance the tunes to a different kind."

Delving into the technical aspects of Hostel Hudugaru..., Ajaneesh says, "I had to meticulously design the music, which is placed in short intervals of 5 to 10 seconds and synchronised with the conversations. Despite the dialogue-heavy nature of the film, I aimed to seamlessly integrate the music, which proved to be a challenging task, and managed to create a cohesive audio experience."

The music director adds that while youthful films typically feature multiple songs, Hostel Hudugaru Bekagiddare deviates from this norm. "Given the concept of the film revolves around hostel life, the narrative crafted by Nithin didn't offer much scope for songs. Nevertheless, the film is filled with unexpected surprises and engaging conversations, allowing for a different kind of storytelling approach. The uniqueness and appealing nature of the film lie in its overall making, music, and its ability to captivate audiences," he says.

I had to unlearn certain techniques for the film: DOP Arvind Kashyap

Arvind Kashyap, the cinematographer of Hostel Hudugaru Bekagiddare, had an unique opportunity in the youthful entertainer. "Even as I was running around as a cinematographer, they convinced me to come in front of the camera too," chuckles Arvind, as he recalls how shooting the film allowed him to relive his engineering days, and even handle crowd scenes with ease.

One of the highlights of working on Hostel Hudugaru... was the team's chance to temporarily live in a hostel during the shoot. "We would shoot there and get back to our rooms after our work. We got an empty hostel, and it was revamped. Watching the film, one can find thousands of hidden details throughout the frames," he explains.

Arvind considers Hostel Hudugaru... to be his most challenging film to date, as it pushed him beyond what he had learned or experienced before. "With around 200 people per frame and with random dialogues, I had to memorise the dialogues that followed and their positions in each shot, and the intentional chaos is visible on screen, as the script demanded it."says Arvind , adding, "The entire film was shot handheld and the camera seamlessly moved between people without fixed blocking, capturing shots from all angles in a 360-degree fashion, immersing itself within the crowd."

The filming process extended over 65 days, with two weeks dedicated to rehearsals. Arvind explains that being part of the narration in a cinema vérité style meant interacting with the actors during the recording. Reflecting on the experience of facing the camera, he laughs and says, "I realised that I didn't want to be an actor but wanted to ensure that I handled the camera while not missing any dialogues."

In terms of uniqueness, Hostel Hudugaru... stands apart from the cinematographer's previous projects, admits Arvind. He says, "While in most films, the aim is to achieve visual perfection in every frame, this film focused on creating an authentic atmosphere. I had to unlearn certain techniques, as anything that looked too polished or good became artificial. The goal was to make it look intentionally imperfect to maintain realism."

Arvind concludes by reflecting on the film's significance. "From a cinematography perspective, Hostel Hudugaru Bekagiddare took me back to my first film, where I had to start from scratch and embrace a fresh approach to capture the essence of the story."

A fresh take on a classic love template with promising newcomers

A SHARADHAA

APAROOPA
Director: Mahesh Babu
Cast: Sughosh,Hrithika Srinivas, Ashok, Aruna Balraj, and Avinash

LOVE stories often pose a unique challenge as they tend to follow a familiar pattern: boy meets girl, encounters misunderstandings or obstacles, and eventually reconciles or rarely makes sacrifices. Breaking away from this template can be difficult. Has director Mahesh Babu presented a fresh take on romance in his latest, Aparoopa?

Vijay (Sughosh), a carefree boy from a middle-class family, enjoys life with his friend, played by Vijay Chendur, indulging in occasional excesses like drinking. His world changes when he meets Haasini (Hrithika Srinivas), a disciplined girl whose parents are absorbed in their work. Despite their contrasting personalities, they become friends and eventually fall in love. However, a small misunderstanding drives them apart. Can they overcome their differences? And which side of the family will support their reunion? These questions form the heart of the story.

Despite technological advancements and differences in storytelling, the essence of young romance remains the same in cinema. Mahesh Babu's storyline may seem clichéd, focusing on the classic trope of a middle-class boy falling for a rich girl, leading to challenges arising from their differing backgrounds. Although the plot follows a familiar path, the introduction of two fresh faces injects a new energy into the film.

Love knows no terms or conditions, but the resolution of differences becomes crucial for these characters. In the end, the parents play a pivotal role in bringing them together, evoking empathy from the audience. The inclusion of the song "Oh My Kareena," sung by Puneeth Rajkumar, which concludes on a happy note, is a poignant moment.

Hrithika Srinivas shines as the girl-next-door, showcasing her charm, especially in dance sequences. Sughosh, portraying Vijay's character, seems to have enjoyed showcasing different facets of an actor. The director provides every opportunity for the newcomer to shine, showcasing his skills in action, dance, dialogue delivery, and allowing him to explore his acting abilities.

RATING 2.5/5

Both newcomers make a decent effort in their first film, and it is now intriguing to see how they will shape their careers going forward.

The supporting cast features familiar senior actors such as Ashok and Aruna Balraj, as Sughosh's parents, who are pleasant on screen. Avinash, as a doting and possessive father, adds depth to the story. Love stories ultimately revolve around the matters of the heart, and Mahesh Babu remains true to the principles of the genre. The wholehearted efforts of the newcomers is definitely a reason to encourage the film and its stars.

'Directing David was a valuable opportunity, but acting remains my primary focus'

CE FEATURES

ACTOR-turned-director Shreyas Chinga is gearing up for his upcoming film, David, which holds great significance in his career. According to Shreyas, it not only marks his first solo lead role but also serves as his directorial debut. Describing the film as a romantic murder mystery, Shreyas takes on the protagonist, Gautham, while the antagonist plays the titular role of David," he explains.

In an interview with CE, ahead of the film's release on July 21, Shreyas discloses that David had already attracted the attention of international distributors who viewed it at the 2019 Cannes Film Festival. "Although we had initially reached an agreement to release the film in multiple languages worldwide, unfortunately, it did not materialize due to various reasons," Shreyas states.

A still from the film

Shreyas is no stranger to the world of filmmaking. His father, Suri, worked as an art director on Malgudi Days by Shankar Nag, and seven English films including Jewel in the Crown, A Passage to India, and Dance Like a Man. Starting his career as a theatre artist, Shreyas had the privilege of collaborating with acclaimed filmmaker and theatre artist Prakash Belavadi and Gowri Dattu.With his involvement in over 250 commercial projects, Shreyas gained valuable experience in various aspects of filmmaking. "I used the money earned from these projects to invest in making short films, and my first acting experience was in the short film Nirekshe, directed by Raghu Shivamogga. Despite the expenses, these ventures proved to be valuable learning experiences that helped me understand the intricacies of production and acting," he shares.

Now in his 14th year in the industry, Shreyas takes on the role of director for David when the original director, Bhargav, left the project midway. "With Bhargav serving as a co-director, through the process, both of us learnt a lot from each other. Eventually, the film underwent significant changes, and I now refer to the film as David 2.0," he reveals.

David, bankrolled by Dhanaraja Babu and Prasad Rudramani is an intriguing murder mystery that intertwines four parallel stories. The film features Sarah Harish as female lead also stars real rapper MC Bijju and SiD in a major role, along with Hollywood cinematographer Steve Rice, and R Devandra Naidu handling the cinematography. Shreyas highlights that the film consists of only one song and will have unique pulp fiction-style storytelling.

Aside from David, Shreyas has also directed another film titled Vacant House. Currently, he is simultaneously shooting for Laxmi Putra, a complete commercial entertainer directed by the young filmmaker Rohit Arun. "Directing David was a valuable opportunity, but my primary focus will always be acting," Shreyas affirms.
